Pleasanton names new principal

Ronald Begley, presently assistant principal at a middle school in Escondido, will become principal of Walnut Grove School in Pleasanton Monday, Oct. 17.

Begley's appointment was approved by Pleasanton Joint School District trustees at their regular meeting Wednesday.

He was selected from an original field of 54 applicants. Ten of the 54 were selected for interviews by a committee composed of parents, teachers, classified employees, administrators, and Carl Krause, assistant superintendent for personnel.

The committee then recommended three candidates to Superintendent Bruce Newlin for final screening. Newlin and assistant superintendents Krause, Doug Rose and Neil Sweeney interviewed the finalists.

Begley was in the district Wednesday night and met the staff at Walnut Grove Thursday morning before returning to Escondido.

Presently assistant principal of Del Dios Middle School in the l Escondido Union School District, the 3-year old graduate of California Western University in San Diego has held a wide range of responsibilities at the middle school level.

His responsibilities at Del Dios include the ASB budget of approximately $25,000, the computerized master scheduling of 1,200 students and 55 teachers in a year-round school, overseeing all student activities, total responsibility for student discipline, partial staff evaluation, and director of athletics.

During his two years as assistant principal, he served as a member of the local School Attendance Review Board (SARB), director of the North-Coastal San Diego Junior High/Middle School Athletic League, and was treasurer of the School Administrators of Escondido.

Before being assigned at Del Dios, Begley was a fourth grade teacher from 1969 to 1970, a resource teacher of the intellectually gifted from 1970 to 1972, fifth grade team leader 1972-74, coordinator of Title III Project Cable Television 1974-75.

After receiving a B.A. from Cal Western in 1969, he earned a Masters from United States International University (the successor to Cal Western), a standard elementary teaching credential and a standard supervision (administrative) credential.

Begley replaces Tony Huff, who resigned in later summer to accept a position in the Turlock School District.

Walnut Grove is a K-5 school with three distinct methods of teaching.

Toothpick Park?

Second grader Christy Baca is now the owner of "The Biggest Bird in Town" — "Big Bird." Donated by Fairlands School teacher Bob Pucci, Big Bird was won by Christy for her winning entry in nsthe playground at Fairlan School, located on West Las Positas in Pleasanton. Christy's choice was "Toothpick Park." And that's what it'll be called from now on. Grade level finalists in the contest were Eric Hofstade, kindergarten; Kathy Damoulas, first grade; Jason Young, third grade; Kim Novella, fourth grade, and Deanna Ertel, fifth grade. Christy is a member of Brenda Mills' class. And she and her friend "Big Bird" are probably the most popular twosome at school! (Times photo)

New Valley hospital plan making progress

The San Am hospital group's efforts to obtain a state permit to build a hospital near Pleasanton's Stoneridge Regional Center are going well, according to Dr. Marvin Goldman of Danville.

The group has hired "the best medical attorney in the state", Sherwin Memel of Los Angeles, to work on the group's application for a certificate of need.

A professional hospital firm in Walnut Creek is also working on the certificate of need. A physicians advisory committee will be forming in a couple of weeks at a meeting whose date will be announced this weekend.

There also is a lay persons' committee which anyone from the public can join by calling Pleasanton Council Member Frank Brandes.

And 8,000 signatures have been collected asking for the hospital. All of the signatures are from the Danville Medical Center where Goldman and other physicians practice.

Goldman has no estimate on when it will all come together so a presentation can be made to the state. There is lots of red tape in Sacramento to satisfy and it will all take time, he said.

But if the group does get approval, probably two years will elapse between approval and completion of the hospital, said Goldman.

It would be more than a hospital, said Goldman. "It's a medical center. It will have convalescent care area and major outpatient services. The concept is a medical center."

County asks crackdown on Castlewood sewage

OAKLAND — A cease and desist order against the Castelewood Country Club sewage treatment plant has been requested by Alameda County supervisors.

The supervisors voted unanimously yesterday to ask the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board to impose the order.

They also imposed their own building ban in Castlewood.

If the regional water board's is imposed, it will mean that the plant, estimated to be running at twice its authorized capacity, will not be able to take any more sewer connections.

The ban also would mean that effluent treated by the plant would have to be trucked out, proabably to Central Sanitary District or perhaps to Valley Community Services District, said Health Department Official Jerry Winn.

The plant was designed in 1953 and authorized to operate at 35,000 gallons per day, said Castlewood Country Club General Manager Bill Lovens. In fact, it is taking in 80,000 gallons of sewage daily, he said.

The "over capacity" problem may be largely the result of spring water intruding into the plant, suggested Supervisor Fred Cooper. He noted by his own rough pencil estimates that the average Castlewood water user is buying 350 gallons per day, but the plant is a taking in 750 gallons per day.

There must be a leak somewhere and perhaps officials from East Bay Municipal Water District could help them find it, said Cooper.

Meanwhile, the great volume of water or whatever is getting into the treatment plant is diluting the plant's ability to treat sewage, said Winn.

"It's so close that the effluent is just inches from the top on the three treatment tanks," said Winn. "There could be a spillover in eight days. If there is wet weather, it could come sooner."

Winn, Lovens, and officials from VCSD, Pleasanton and the BRWQCB plan to meet next Thursday to try to resolve the problem.

Eventually Castlewood will hook up to VCSD, but that can't happen for another two or three years, said Winn, because various Valley developers have priority first.

The Times learned that in one emergency, Castlewood had to pump effluent into trucks and dispose of it at the Pleasanton sewage treatment plant to prevent a spillover into the creek that flows into Alameda Creek.

Supervisor Valerie Raymond thought that the water quality control board ought to be more concerned about the prospect of raw sewage spilling over into Alameda Creek than they are about salts from treated effluent coming from VCSD and Livermore. Alameda Creek flows into the Fremont underground water supply.

Winn had reported that he was having trouble getting the regional water board interested in the Castlewood situation.

The board made it clear yesterday it won't grant any more building permits in the Castlewood area until the situation is cleared up. They approved permits for five property owners who already had building plans approved or had paid sewer connection fees to Castlewood.

Murray teachers reach tentative salary pact

Murray teachers will probably discuss and vote on a tentative agreement on a two-year contract Tuesday, Oct. 18, and district trustees are expected to follow suit at their board meeting thereafter.

A tentative agreement was reached Tuesday afternoon. Should both sides ratify the pact on or before the first of November, it would mark the second straight year that Murray has been first amongst Valley districts to reach agreement.

The contract calls for a 5 per cent increase to the salary schedule, increased coverage of fringe benefits and a two-year contract with re-openers on key areas.

George Richmond, Murray Teachers Association negotiating chief, expressed satisfaction with the negotiating process during a press conference conducted Thursday afternoon.

"The negotiating process in this contract, under collective bargaining, proves that collective bargaining does not necessarily create the animosity that many people assume. Neither side was forced to assume an adversary role. I'm extremely proud of the effort put out by the (negotiating) team to achieve this agreement. I am equally proud of the total package," Richmond said.

Negotiating team members Paul Vinella and Jerry Joyce also expressed elation at "reaching a tentative agreement this early in the year."

Added Joyce, "I'm excited about the total package. It is both fair and equitable to both sides."

Heinz Gewing, assistant superintendent of the Murray School District, and Jim Pinnell, of the law firm of Breon, Galgani and Godino, represented the board and administration of the district.

This year's negotiations were far different than the sometimes bitter rhetoric, protest marches, accusations and shows of strength that characterized last year's talks.

One of the chief stumbling blocks last year was binding arbitration of grievances. Teachers and board, after many lengthy negotiations sessions, finally agreed to an advisory form of arbitration.

School Supt. for Murray is honored

DUBLIN— A joint project of the American Association of School Administrators and the Ford Foundation, aimed at providing counsel and support to new female school superintendents, was initiated nationwide during the past three days with Murray School District's Jessie Kobayashi as the beneficiary.

The program is supported by a Ford Foundation grant of $140,000 and is divided into three components: Teaching women administrators how to be more visible in the community and job training for 75 especially-selected women, a female superintendent counsel and support effort, and equalizing of financial allocations for women administrators.

The second component listed is the one that a seven-person team of educators has involved Dr. Kobayashi in the past three days.

After completing discussions and visitations with the new Murray superintendent today, some members of the team will go on to University City, Mo., and then to Evanston, Illinois.

Stark hits Oak Knoll probe

Rep. Fortney H. (Pete) Stark rsponding to a "skimpy report" on conditions at Oak Knoll Naval hospital today demanded a full disclosure of all steps being taken to correct deficiencies at the Oakland facility.

Stark (D-Oakland) whose ninth district includes Oak Knoll, said he has filed a request under the Freedom of Information Act for a copy of the full report resulting from an investigation made by the Naval Inspector General's office.

Stark was one of the people who called for an investigation for alleged deteriorating conditions last July.

"The Navy claims to have taken action to correct the deficiencies, but declined to specify what they are," Stark said. "A full disclosure of all circumstances surrounding the deaths, along with actions taken, are contemplated to prevent similar tragedies in the future and is the only way to restore full confidence in the hospital."

Kaiser sand has buyer?

Koppers Co., based in Pittsburgh, is thinking about buying Kaiser Sand and Gravel.

Negotiations for sale of Kaiser Sand and Gravel to Material Service Corp., a division of General Dynamics, fell though a month ago.

No details of the current negotiations were available.

Kaiser reportedly will talk to Koppers until agreement is reached or the talks are called off.

Proposed sale of the division is part of Kaiser Industries stockholder-approved plan of complete voluntary liquidation of the corporation.

Mori sets seniors talk

Assemblyman Floyd Mori (D-Pleasanton) will address senior citizens' concerns when he visits the "Dining With Us" program at Veterans Memorial Hall Tuesday.

Mori will talk with seniors about their concerns and legislation that affects the elderly at the 11:30 a.m. address.

The luncheon is open to any person 60 or older but reservations for lunch must be made on Monday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. at 462-6616.

San Ramon problem

Trial traffic control team works

DANVILLE — An experimental seven-car enforcement team provided by the California Highway Patrol (CHP) is being tried as one method of controlling traffic problems in areas like south San Ramon Valley.

The team has been operating one month, according to CHP Captain Joe Barnett. He spoke to a group of 50 duringa monthlyliaison committee session held yesterday morning by Eric Hasseltine at the Danville Hotel Restaurant and Saloon. Hasseltine is Contra Costa county's fifth district supervisor.

"200 to 250 enforcements were made in the south San Ramon Valley area during a 20 working day period," Barnett explained. "That doesn't necessarily mean citations were given. Sometimes only a warning was given. We've gone into that area and other problem areas on a high visibility, high contact basis and it is proving effective."

Barnett pointed out it was not feasible for a patrolman to make a high speed chase on residential streets.

"That simple increases the danger along that street."

Barnett said patrolmen in the seven cars do not take calls for other types of service such as accidents. They are to work strictly on traffic control in problem areas.

Radar is needed to do a patrolman's job more effectively, according to Barnett.

"We've been asking state legislators for years to let us get radar but they keep telling us no," Barnett noted. "Since we are short of manpower, we need all of the mechanical aids we can get; especially since we have to cover roughly 1000 miles of county roads plus 120 miles of state highways."

He added the biggest demand on freeways was for service to people whose cars have broken down. Speed is the main problem in south San Ramon Valley, he reported.

If a request for more motorcycles is met, Barnett said those vehicles would enable patrolmen to have better control over speeders along residential streets.

Mike Walford, deputy director of public works for Contra Costa county, also spoke. He explained that law enforcement was more effective in controlling traffic than stop signs or speed bumps.

He said surveys by public works departments in other areas have proved stop signs and speed bumps are not that effective.

"In fact, they often create other problems such as pollution buildup at intersections and giving people a place to begin a drag race."

Walford explained that stop signs were put up on the basis of "warrants."

Warrants include how hazardous an intersection might be, how many accidents have occurred there, numbers of people using the intersection, etc.

He added that hazards, not speed, were the criteria for erecting stop signs.

Kidnapping, attempted rape suspect charged

PLEASANTON — A 21-year-old Pleasanton man was formally charged yesterday with the kidnapping and attempted rape of a 15-year-old girl that took allegedly took place here Tuesday morning, the district attorney's office reported.

According to police, a 15-year-old girl was walking to school along Vineyard Avenue about 7:40 a.m. Tuesday when a car pulled up and the driver offered her a ride. Thinking the man was the brother of a friend she had just met at school, the girl agreed, police reported.

The girl became scared when the driver missed her turn and apparently took her to Livermore, police reported, where the attempted assault allegedly took place. The driver backed off when the girl began to cry, officers reported, so he drove her back to the corner of Vineyard and First streets in Pleasanton and let her off.

The girl gave a description of the suspect and his car to police.

Officer Paul Helms spotted a car matching the description of the suspect vehicle on School Street. The victim reportedly identified the car as the one in which she was kidnapped.

Helms found a man matching the description of the suspect on Jensen Street shortly thereafter. The victim reportedly identified the man as the assailant.

Charged with kidnapping and assault with attempt to commit rape was Jeryl Leighton Evans, 18, of 1302 Hopyard Ave., apartment no. 43.

Evans was released on his own recognizance.

Burglars seen leaving Ventura Court home

LIVERMORE — More than $1,100 in stereo and television equipment was stolen from Son Mo Kim's Ventura Court home Tuesday, police reported.

Witnesses reported seeing two youths, aged 14 to 16 years, jumping over a rear fence with some of the victim's property. The investigation is continuing.

Tape recorder stolen as victim looks on

PLEASANTON — A gutsy thief stopped his car in the middle of Canary Drive late Wednesday and scooped a tape recorder off the ground only 75 feet from its owner, police reported.

Julie Ann Maginnis of San Ramon said she had gotten out of a car to talk with a friend who had parked ahead of her. She set the tape recorder on the ground and the driver of her car moved the vehicle across the street.

Moments later a car going up Canary stopped in the middle of the street; the driver jumped out, grabbed the recorder, got back in his car and drove off.

Missing is a Telex brand cassette recorder valued at $300.

14 marijuana plants seized on Sunset Drive

LIVERMORE — A tipster led police to confiscate 14 suspected marijuana plants growing inside a Sunset Drive garage Tuesday, officers reported.

The plants, two to four inches tall, were taken to police headquarters. No arrests were made.

CB radio taken from car on Leona Drive

LIVERMORE — Burglars entered a locked car on Leona Drive Tuesday and stole a citizens band radio and power microphone valued at $350, police reported.

Douglas Fulton Hoffman said a Cobra brand CB radio was taken from his locked vehicle. There are no suspects.

Jewelry taken from Corday Court home

PLEASANTON — Jewelry valued at $265 was lifted from a jewelbox inside a Corday Court home recently, police reported.

Donna Esquivel reported the theft of three pairs of gold earrings and a gold bracelet. There are no suspects.

Truck taken from Livermore High School lot

LIVERMORE — A 1957 pick-up truck was stolen from the parking lot at Livermore High School Wednesday, police reported.

The truck was locked at the time of the theft. There are no suspects.

A 'miscalculation'

This photo released by the Department of Energy shows an ill-contained underground nuclear weapons experiment conducted by Lawrence Livermore Laboratory at Yucca Flat, Nev., test site pec. 18, 1970. The experiment, termed "Baneberry," was supposed to be contained underground but technicians miscalculated the groundwater at the site and steam created by the blast "added considerably to the impact of the explosion," according to an LLL spokesman. Radioactive dust rose 10,000 feet and 300 persons on the site were exposed to low levels of radiation though leakage was well within the standards allowed by law, according to LLL.

Growth plan hits rough questioning

PLEASANTON — City officials and chamber of commerce representatives spent two hours sharing worries over the proposed growth management plan this week in an effort to air complaints and differences over the controversial plan.

Speaking for the chamber's industrial committee, which has met four times to map out potential problems, chamber president Bill Hirst split the weighty "Residential Allocation Program" into its philosophical and pragmatic sides.

"Is this the best approach to growth management?" he asked as a way to curry state and federal financies for the LAVWMA pipeline and sewer plant expansion.

And will it work?

Chamber industrial development committee chairman Jack Bras, who in the past has been outspoken in his worry over the plan, bolstered Hirst's concerns by claiming the plan's formula will favor big developers over small ones, and will not promote "in-filling" of the city's core.

The "Residential Allocation Program" was modified by city planning commissioners last month, and will face public hearings before the city council beginning Oct. 18.

As approved by the planning commission, it would establish city council as the review board to hand out building permits based on a point system.

Developers would win points by conforming to environmental, fiscal and housing criteria. Those with the most points would go to the top of the list.

City officials say the plan is a "rational" way of allocating limited sewer permits. The days of unbridled residential expansion are over, they say, as state and federal agencies closely monitor the quality of growth.

The plan applies only to residential growth, but the chamber fears further legal entangelements for the city, as well as a cumbersome plan that will not guarantee quality control of future developments.

They also express fears the "controled growth" label will leave would-be commercial and industrial developers wary of investing in Pleasanton.

"The question becomes 'Is this the best way to achieve the goals set out in the preamble?' " asked Times' editor John Edmands.

"Is it workable? Legally defensible? And worth it?" he asked. "How are you going to exercise any reasonable quantitative or qualitative control as the VCSD expansion comes on line?"

Bras said the point system favors large developers at the expense of small-scale builders.

His plans for a seven-unit apartment house in the downtown core will only earn between 26 and 40 points, he charged, and thus a lower spot in the building permit sweepstakes.

He said builders will shun the downtown area in favor of cheaper land on the city's outskirts where they will earn additional points for building streets and installing lights and green belts.

Rather than promoting "in-fill," Bras fears the plan will work to the core area's detriment.

Chamber president Hirst said his group probably will take a formal stand on the controversial plan, although he does not know if it will come from the board of directors, or the general membership.

He promised to make further presentations as it winds its way through city council hearings.

Prisoner treaty gets push

WASHINGTON D.C. — Rep. Fortney H. "Pete" Stark, D-Oakland, made another effort yesterday to speed up the release of American prisoners from Mexican jails.

Stark appeared for the second time this year before a House Judiciary subcommittee to urge approval of a treaty that would allow an exchange of prisoners between the U.S. and Mexico.

Complaining about a "lack of progress" on the treaty, Stark urged the committee to give it final approval before Congress adjourns this month.

There currently are about 600 Americans held in Mexican prisons and 1,000 Mexicans in U.S. jails. Stark has been pushing the treaty since March, 1974, after hearing complaints of torture, extortion and forced confessions from Americans in Mexican prisons.

While the Senate has ratified the treaty and passed enabling legislation, the treaty has moved nowhere in the House. Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pennsylvania, chairman of the sub-committee, denied suggestions that he was holding up action on the treaty and called for its passage this year.

During questioning by the sub-committee, Stark was asked by Eilberg if the U.S. should not be more selective in the prisoners it takes bac(by "weeding out" the people convicted of more serious crimes.

Stark said in response that all those charged with serious crimes — as well as those who have been in prison on minor drug violations — should be allowed to return to the U.S.

"I would rather rely on our own justice and penal system than those of another country," Stark said.

After prodding by Stark, the State pepartment two years ago investigated charges that U.S. prisoners in Mexican jails have been denied their due process. As a result, Stark told the sub-committee Thursday the State Department concluded that 84 per cent of the complaints from Americans had "substantial merit."

The prisoner exchange treaty was signed last November by then President Ford. It needs House approval to become final.

Murray school chief lauded

Paul Salmon, executive director of the AASA in Arlington, Va. and member of the team meeting with Dr. Kobayashi, said the program resulted from a situation in the Oakland Unified School District where Dr. Ruth Love, the superintendent, was assisted in her administration via a grant from Kaiser.

From this, Salmon says, came the idea to approach the Ford Foundation.

Emphasis of the program is to assist new female school superintendents.

Salmon adds that it is aimed at the person rather than the district as a whole.

Effie Jones, coordinator of the project and associate director of AASA, says the three-days of consultation will "help female superintendents see problems through other eyes."

Data collected by the team will be put into a report that Dr. Kobayashi, in this instance, will receive in about a month. Members of the team will return in approximately six months as a followup.

The nationally-known team of educators, who've stayed at Howard Johnson's the past three days, includes Salmon, Ms. Jones, Dr. John Dobbs, an assistant superintendent in the Michigan State Dept. of Education, Alan Dye, business and finance manager for the Evanston, Illinois, School District, Dr. Georgia Williams, director of project development and evaluations for the Berkeley Unified School District, and Dr. Charles W. Townsel, superintendent of the Del Paso Heights School District.

Before coming to the Murray district, Dr. Kobayashi was assistant superintendent of the Whisman School District in Mountain View. She has been a member and chairperson of many statewide education committees during her years in the profession.

Plans move on hospital

The only thing Goldman is not happy about is what he termed "inaccurate reporting" in the Tri - Valley News.

"That paper said that we are a proprietary (profit - making) hospital. We are not and we never have been. If we were, I never would have become involved in this. We are a public, non - profit corporation and are incorporated that way."

"The News reporter, who has not talked to me in a year, also said we were have applied for a certificate of need twice from the state. That's not true. We applied once, under the old hospital need law, and were told to apply again because of the new law," said Goldman.

Teachers reach terms

Teachers and boards in the Amador, Pleasanton, Livermore and San Ramon school districts have still to reach tentative agreements on contract terms.

The San Ramon district is in mediation with both sides reportedly still farm apart on the basic issues of salary, fringe benefits, evaluations, and binding arbitration.

Former students of Murray Grammar School are planning a reunion for Saturday, Oct. 15 at the Pleasanton Hotel. Shown here is the class of 1935 and includes (back row) two teachers, Leona Johnson McGlinchey and Lilian Jensen Hansen, who are planning to attend the reunion. Alumnus Donna Kolb Miller has sent out 160 invitations and is still trying to locate others. Mrs. Miller would especially like to locate anyone from the Morris and Edison families. If you know how she could contact them, or if you are a Murray Grammer School alumnus Mrs. Miller would like to talk to you. Her phone number is 846-5746.

Septic tank ban still in effect

OAKLAND — Alameda County supervisors continued to uphold the ban on new construction in the Happy Valley Road area because of the problem with septic tanks there.

The county declared a moratorium on new construction there a couple of years ago after it discovered that some drinking wells in the area were contaminated from human fecal matter infiltrating from septic tanks.

As Supervisor Valerie Raymond explained it yesterday, the geology of the area is such that the underground is one big sump with a relatively small amount of wastes able to have an effect on the area's fresh water supply.

The applicant yesterday, Mrs. John Riordan, thought it was unreasonable to single out her application on 57 acres when earlier the board had approved building in the area on parcels as small as one acre.

But previous approvals were the work of previous supervisors and now that a health crisis exists in the area, the board is firm about the building ban there, said Supervisor Joseph Bort.

Rayomond suggested to Mrs. Riordan that she put the land in the Williamson Act to keep the taxes down until the property can be developed. Undoubtedly a sewer line will have to come to Happy Valley Road before the Riordans can develop their land, said Raymond.

New Town gets final farewell from Raymond

OAKLAND — Harlan Geldermann told the press last week he will fight on to get approval for his New Town proposal north of Livermore, but Supervisor Valerie Raymond made it clear yesterday she thinks the proposal is dead.

Raymond issued a press release yesterday which spells out the reasons she voted against New Town and the language indicates she thinks the issue is dead.

"Now that the Las Positas New Town issue has been settled and in light of the sometimes vitriolic verbiage that has been generated around this issue, I would like to spell out what I feel the issue really revolved around," said Raymond.

She said the basic question has been — should the county allow another 45,000 people in the unincorporated area, or should those people be admitted to the existing communities of Dublin, Pleasanton and Livermore?

She opted for the latter, as did Supervisors Joe Bort and John George. It's clear, in the light of federal funding of sewage treatment plants, that there is not the other option of both building Las Positas and adding another 45,000 people to the three communities, she said.

Raymond also pointed out that the exisiting government structures of the three communities can better handle growth than could a "fringe area that is totally undeveloped and has no public facilities whatsoever."

"Las Positas had very few of the ingredients necessary for a New Town to have a chance for survival, and there is little doubt in my mind that it would have gone the way of the many 'New Town' communities which have become a burden to the federal government," she said. "However, in this case, the burden would be on Alameda County, as the federal government has refused to subsidize any more New Towns."

Geldermann also presented a "very theoretical concept for a New Town," said Raymond. "Supervisors Bort, George, and I made numerous attempts to get more specific answers to a number of very basic questions which Mr. Geldermann was unwilling or unable to answer.

"I do not question the fact that the Bay Area does need, and will continue to need, additional middle and low - income housing. I will vote for any well - thought - out development proposal that is consistent with sound land - use planning and that can be provided with adequate services," she said.

Freeways earn status —'Scenic Corridors'

OAKLAND — Motorists along Interstates 680 and 580 in the Valley will continue to have a good view of the scenery, thanks to the county supervisors' unanimous action yesterday.

The supervisors adopted scenic route corridors for the two freeways — on 680 from the Contra Costa County line down to Fremont, and on 580 from the Altamont pass to Interstate 680.

The corridors are 1,000 feet wide in most places, though they narrow to 100 feet in some places. The designation will protect the scenic views from instrusion by any new construction.

Specifically protected along I-580 are "views of Mt. Diablo, the foothills north of the highway, the ridges surrounding the Livermore - Amador Valley, and the Altamont Hills."

Along I-680, "views of Sunol Valley, Pleasanton Ridge, Mt. Diablo, and the Livermore Valley are to be protected within the corridor south of Pleasanton. In Dublin, the view of the Dougherty Hills, the hills west of the community, Mt. Diablo, and the Livermore Valley are to be protected," said the supervisors' resolution.

"Structures proposed within the corridor should not interfere with views unless overriding considerations exist. Structures within the corridor should also be compatible with the enjoyment of distant views. Roof treatments should receive attention," said the resolution.

It all means that when someone in the unincorporated area comes in for a building permit within the scenic corridors, the development will be checked to see if it interferes with the view.

This already has been done with outdoor advertising signs, which must be awarded a permit from County Zoning Administrator Richard Flynn. The new resolution will have most of its effect on other structures, noted Planning Director William Fraley.

Parking tops chamber luncheon

LIVERMORE — Parking facilities in the downtown area will be the major topic of the general membership meeting of Livermore Chamber of Commerce at noon, Oct. 18.

The luncheon meeting at the Holiday Inn will feature presentation by city staff of a parking facilities study by city staff. The study encompasses the area from Livermore Avenue to "P" Street and Fourth Street to the railroad tracks. Study maps, reasonable cost estimates and some possible alternatives for parking will be discussed.

Wahlig kicks off school campaign

A series of coffees is being planned in homes throughout the Valley to give voters a chance to meet Michael Wahlig, candidate for school board in the Nov. 8 election.

Wahlig is one of four persons seeking the position vacated by Ronald Harris this past summer. The successful candidate will serve on the San Ramon Valley School District board until March of 1979 at which time they could run for a full term or terminate their service.

The other candidates are Don Smith of San Ramon, and Joan Scott and Karen Stepper of Danville.

Wahlig said yesterday, "I want to explain to voters my views on what the school board can do in the crucial areas of student housing, taxes, and quality education," Wahlig said. "There always are important issues facing the board, so it is important that people take time to become informed, even though this is the only vote on the ballot."

The first coffee for Wahlig will be at the home of Dick and Sylvia Kennett, 847 El Cerro Blvd., Danville, Oct. 10 at 8 p.m.

Lawrence Laboratory chemists Jim Evans (left) and Ray Newbury prepare the startling "clock" reaction in which two clear solutions suddenly turn black. This and other interesting demonstrations are part of of this month's Science Week show at the Lab Oct. 10-14.

Lab magicians set show to dazzle and delight

LIVERMORE — A "cool" show on the startling effects of liquid nitrogen — a liquid cooled to 200 degrees below zero — will take place four times daily Monday through Friday during Science Week at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

LLL chemists Jim Evans and Ray Newbury will present fast - moving demonstrations of the startling effects of liquid nitrogen and chemical reactions that suddenly change color.

The presentatioin is essentially a repeat of the popular June Science Week demonstration. Newbury and Evans will present the half-hour show at 10 a.m., noon, 2 .and 4 p.m. each day during Science Week.

Nitrogen is normally a gas, making up more than three-quarters of the air we breathe. But when cooled to below its boiling point, thp gas bpcomes a liquid which is often used as a coolant in scientific laboratories.

This cold liquid can also be used to entertain and educate. Delicate flowers are quickly frozen until they are so brittle they crumble at the slightest touch. A gas-filled balloon shrivels because the gas inside contracts when cooled. A normally dim light bulb glows brighter because the wire leads conduct electricity more easily when cooled. The ring of a lead bell turns from a "thud" to a "gong" because the metal is harder when cooled.

Evans and Newbury will also demonstrate two dramatic color - changing reactions.

In the first — the "clock" reaction — two chemical solutions are mixed together in a beaker. Aftpr a few seconds, almost as if by command, the liquid suddenly turns black.

"This reaction happens so fast it startles people," Newbury said.

The second reaction is the humorous "tick-tock" reaction. Three clear solutions are mixed together. At regular intervals, the liquid turns blue, then orange, then white, then blue again and repeats the pattern for several minutes.

The show features a dramatic ending that is both frightening and amusing.

Science Week is held during the second week of each month at the LLL Visitors Center, located on Greenville Road about two miles south of Interstate 580. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and noon to 5 p.m. on weekends.

CC County schedules foster care conference

MARTINEZ — Pre-registrations are being taken from Contra Costa county residents interested in attending a one-day regional conference on foster care Oct. 12 at Chabot College, Hayward from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Pre-registration services can be obtained by calling Steve Liebermann Associates of San Francisco, 495-8448.

The conference is being sponsored by the Bay Area Action for Foster Children Committee in conjunction with the Children's Bureau-Administration for Children Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Congressman George Miller of Martinez will be the keynote speaker. He is author of the recently passed Foster Care and Adoption Reform Act in the House of Representatives.

Contra Costa county is one of the first counties in the United States to form an independent, non-profit Action for Foster Children Committee under corporate status, according to an Action for Foster Children newsletter.

The purpose of the conference is to provide a variety of workshops covering a wide range of foster care problems. A series of innovative programs will be examined. The title of the conference is "Foster Children — Whose Responsibility?"

The conference will also serve to update the volunteer agency staff, foster parents and public agency staff on current legislation and regulations.

Among eleven workshops to be held are those on School services for foster children. This will be chaired by Eileen Kelley. She is Program Administrator for the Foster Child Program at Mt. Diablo Unified School District.

Treasury Department honors vigilant customs inspector

SAN RAMON — As a result of outstanding investigative work, Charles McLeod of San Ramon received a special award and $500 from Secretary of the Treasury Michael Blumenthal on behalf of the Treasury Department.

McLeod is a Criminal Investigator with the U.S. Customs Service which is a division of the Treasury Department.

McLeod was honored Sept. 9, 1977 in Washington D.C. for his investigative efforts that led to the prosecution of executives involved in a scheme to illegally export electronic equipment to a foreign country.

McLeod explained he began the investigation in July, 1975. The U.S. Attorney's office indicted Carl Story and Gerald Starek in May, 1976, according to McLeod.

"But this matter is not closed," McLeod noted. "We caught two of the principals but we don't think they are the masterminds of the operation."

"Story was vice-president and Starek the president of I.I. Industries in Sunnyvale, California," McLeod continued. "That company is involved in manufacturing equipment which is a strategic rated commodity; namely, semiconductors."

He reported Story and Starek entered into an agreement with German nationals to sell semi-conductor equipment to the Soviet Union. This was a direct violation of export control laws, McLeod added.

Following a two-week surveillance, other information was gathered that ended in other indictments.

"One person we caught was using dual identity. Actually, he was a German national and former Luftwaffe pilot."

McLeod said he had traveled to Germany to interview a witness. He also conferred with the German government to see if they could prosecute their own German nationals. There is no reciprocity between countries in this type of crime, according to McLeod.

"There are outstanding arrest warrants in the United States for those we haven't caught in connection with this crime. The matter is being pursued in Germany."

McLeod explained that Russia was interested in obtaining semi-conductor equipment since their technology in that field has not caught up with ours.

"They are still operating on a vacuum tube level. We used vacuum tubes during the early days of radio, progressed to transistors then to semi-conductors."

Semi-conductors are used in everything from digital watches to guidance systems for missiles, McLeod noted.

SR school board to eye curriculum

DANVILLE — The San Ramon Valley Unified School District Board of Education decided earlier this week to take an in-depth look at its high school curriculum.

Board members will discuss high school graduation requirements, the length of school days, the Hart Bill and the district's after-school athletic program at a special study session slated for 7:30 p.m. Nov. 10 at the Education Center, 699 Old Orchard Dr.

The board also postponed until its Oct. 17 meeting action on a recommended increase in tuition for adult education classes.

The delay was necessary because of the absence of board member Gregory McCoy, who requested the increase.

The board rescinded a resolution which provided the district with three driver training vehicles from Walnut Creek Toyota. The Toyota dealer had notified the district it would not be able to supply the cars.

Child abuse

Earlier this week; The Times reported on the PTA's ongoing campaign against "television crime", and we also noted the "overwhelming vote in the House of Representatives" aimed at "strong criminal penalties" for those who profit from sexual abuse of children.

Both steps earn a great deal of public support; we wonder if somebody hasn't gotten us onto the wrong path.

The ability of adults to influence, or to warp, the minds of small children has been known since the beginning of time. The Bible is replete with such references.... long before we had television, or a Congress of the United States.

Adult control of childern has grown as we strengthened our "free society", and as some fought for a strengthening of "the fundamental rights of the family." (We can recall a 1976 nation - wide flap when Congress allegedly sought to weaken some parental powers and give children direct access to outside legal authority. The cries of parental anguish ober that rumor were heard from New York to Livermore.)

It is the parental right to love, to teach, to mould and yes, even to "abuse" the child which is fundamental to our society. The chief jurist for Alameda County's Juvenile Court System once advised this reporter "we have learned over the years that even the worst possible family relationship is often better for the child than removing that youngster into an institution or into a foster home."

Children are captive members of an "adult society in a free nation" and there is no amount of law making, no volume of censorship that is ever going to change that.

But we can work to improve society's total structure ... to upgrade our view of life, and of each other; to demand higher standards njot just from laws, but from lawmakers; to improve the quality of "entertainment" not just during television's "family hour" but in all of the hours that we are entertained, by a thousand different sources.

Talk about "making this a better world for our children" is a cop - out when we are unable, or unwilling, to make life meaningful for all adults. That's where the power is, that's where the campaign must start. And that, in the final analysis, is where children will gain their own best chance at life.

Insulated council

Sure, everyone knows there's an "energy crisis" of one kind or another, and sure, most of us want to do something about it;

And yes, insulating homes might be the single most significant act in conserving that ne energy needed to keep us warm and to keep us cool;

But no, local ordinances are not the easiest way to approach that energy - conservation move, not when peoples' property rights are at stake.

We have nothing but admiration for Livermore city council's effort to initiate meaningful action aimed at insulating every residence in the city community. We are not surprised one whit by the swell of resistance to that program.

Americans are not readily swayed to do anything with their property, their private lifestyle. When Uncle Sam or Uncle Sacto tell us we "must" do this or that, we comply, reluctantly, even angrily. But in time, we comply.

When local government mandates a program designed to conserve energy, perhaps even save us money over the long haul, we are , inclined to tell 'em to go to hell. That is the way with our imperfect democracy.

If City of Livermore is intent upon thrusting itself into the nation's energy - conservation campaign, then we would urge them to research their subject well, bring in the best possible authority, give the people all the facts, and then give them lots of opportunity to respond.

Energy conservation has got to become part of the American way of life. We are well behind the rest of the world on that score. We are well ahead of the rest in our right to speak out, to tell local leaders what we think of their home - insulation ideas.

It is an interesting conflict. But then again, when was Livermore ever dull?

. . .and the people

The real problem is that local government fails to communicate with the public, right? Try telling that to the Pleasanton city council which has repeatedly sought to establish "neighborhood meetings" or to have the mayor hold "Saturday morning office hours" as another thrust at "getting to know the people."

Council's latest venture into the residential tracts came on Tuesday of this week. All five members of the council showed, plus seven department heads. The "Interested citizens" from that Pleasanton Valley neighborhood numbered exactly seven.

On Friday, Oct. 14, Livermore will muster forces from city hall, from the community's school system and the park and recreation district. The a "Critical Issues Seminar" will attempt to s wrap up the major questions of the year for Livermore's citizenry; those people in turn will be able to ask questions, provide their input.

It will be interesting to see how many of the community's vocal populace — never bashful when it comes to mounting an attack — will feel motivated to participate in the system before there is another crisis.

FOCUS/Negotiations

Learning process

If the collective bargaining process in school districts around this state more and more takes on the appearance of a warring camp where the two sides send out their bravest warriors to do battle, you've got the basic image of what this annual exercise in armwrestling has become.

On the one side is the administration and school board, thrusting their highly-paid and highly-skilled professional combatant onto center stage. On the other are the teachers, well-disciplined spear carriers in this drama and large enough in number to overrun the "enemy's" position.

During the initial year of negotiations, most teacher bargaining units "went to war" using the weapons and skills within their own ranks.

Foolish lads and lasses!

They soon learned the other side's "champion" had a retinue of skilled aides who could be rushed into the skirmish. If a strategic withdrawal were called for, the "champion" and his employers could (A) absent themselves, (B) send up "flak" from other quarters or (C) stealthily take their case to the "loyalists"— also known as the anti-teacher or angry taxpayer faction.

Teachers retaliated in part by going to the media.

This resulted in (A) the teachers winning more converts to their side, (B) the teachers arousing more angry taxpayers, and (C) the media selling more copies of their product.

All the while this was occuring, the professional warrior was collecting his due, in some cases a five-number figure. Teachers continued to wring their hands.

And the taxpayers became more aroused.....and the kids started wondering if grownups ALWAYS acted in such a peculiar manner.

The collective bargaining drama has been largely played as professional employer versus professional worker.

But little is ever said of those OTHER people. You know, the ones standing outside with their noses pressed to the window!

They're generally referred to as classified employees.

Keep 'em at arm's length the other two warring factions say. After all, their hands are dirty from toiling all day!

But dirty hands or not, college degree or no degree, classified employees have also learned that it's tough going to the bargaining table without a skilled, polished and glib front man.

In a word, they're "organizing."

The group is called Political Action for Classified Employees.

Now PACE is not meant to directly represent employees at the bargaining table as it is to look out for their interests in the legislative arena.

A recent release from PACE declares that classified school employees favor longer terms for state legislators but feel the number of terms they serve should be limited.

The school workers also favor a mandatory retirement age for lawmakers and believe some state-level election campaigns should be financed by the public.

While this has no direct bearing on the realm of negotiations, it is a strong indication that classified employees are equally .&han 1 as serious as any school board counsel or teacher negotiating committee.

Referee attacked

Editor, The Times:

As an active participant in the youth soccer program for many years, I am saddened by the incident which took place this past week-end which resulted in the physical attack on one of our soccer referees and the lasting impression this deed, no doubt, has left on many of our youth players as well as members of the community. There is no room for this type of conduct in any activity and no excuse for it either, regardless of the provocation.

As a parent, I feel the man involved in the attack on the referee was very lax in his duties as a parent. "Parenting" is not an easy job but our children learn from our actions and the examples we set forth. Children are also very quick to pick up the attitudes of the adults surrounding them. What kind of an example was this parent setting?

As a coach, I don't understand why the coach of the team involved couldn't or didn't make some effort to control the irate parent. A coach is responsible for the conduct of his players as well as their parents.

As a referee, I know I have missed "calls" but I am only human as are all those men and women and boys and girls who are out in the middle of the field volunteering their time.

Soccer is a growing sport and a super sport too, but no activity needs the involvement of irresponsible people. Perhaps this parent should stay home or, better yet, sit down and think about an activity for his kids and other kids which has been given a black eye by his actions and what he might do to rectify his gross behavior.

Teachers aware

Editor, The Times:

By mid-September, less than 1 per cent of 4,761 school districts in eight states were on strike. Opponents of negotiations often seize headlines to say that "bargaining means strikes." Statistics prove, however, that in the vast majority of cases bargaining works.

This fall, for example, a total of 62 walkouts were reported as of Sept. 15, with 22 current association strikes affecting Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, California, New Jersey, Rhode Island, and Washington.

That figure of 22 current strikes means that only 10 out of some 570 Pennsylvania districts were affected, as were only 3 of Michigan's 580 and 3 of Ohio's 620 districts. Meanwhile, 2 of Illinois' 1,016 districts, and only one each out of California's 1,042, New Jersey's 592, Rhode Island's 40, and Washington's 301 were on strike.

What all this shows is that teachers have been right in maintaining since the origin of bargaining in the schools that negotiations are a way to reach reasonable conclusions without confrontation. The strike picture this fall shows that in most cases bargaining is working as it should, as teachers become increasingly sophisticated at the table and school boards acknowledge that bargaining is here to stay.

Teachrs are aware that most boards are no longer panicked by strikes and in fact sometimes try to provoke strikes in order to save money and arouse community sentiment against the teachers. Teachers aren't letting this happen and are using the strike only when it appears that is the only way left to win their educational and professional priorities.

Gun dealer?

Editor, The Times:

G. Roger Gathers and I seem destined to continue entertaining your readership with pot-shots at each other. I confess, however, that I feel he is quite wide the mark again in his letter of Sept. 30.

He rails at the "ignorant destruction of valuable property" when under discussion is the great number of handguns confiscated by the authorities and eventually destroyed for lack of space. Mr. Gathers objection to this perfectly legitimate procedure has almost a simple-minded ring to it, or is a willful misunderstanding of the role of the police in this country.

At this point a light begins to dawn for me. Someone in Pleasanton is a gun-dealer and will not have his merchandise down-graded in any manner. If my surmise is correct we have here a "bootstrap" operation with a host of discourtesies shown the police profession for frustrating those persons who retail lethality and object to the control of lethality — by the police.

Women mechanics

To The Times:

Attention: Carla Marinucci

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you and the Pleasanton Times for the excellent articles which appeared on September 15 concerning our auto-mechanics program for women.

The article gave outstanding insights into the role of women in non-traditional jobs and serves as an inspiration to other women seeking to enter occupations normally not entered into by women.

Again, thank you for the articles and the reinforcement it will provide to women in our program.

round the town

Edmund G. Brown, Jr.
Apt. 3B, Sacramento, CA.

Dear Jerr:

I apologize, old friend, for not having written before this. But, what with National Fire Prevention Week, National 4-H Week and National Jogging Day, you can see that we newspaper people have been busy as all get out.

I am however all through with the "Get Bert Lance" assignment (wasn't that a mess?) and since Billy Carter is on the Beauty Contest tour and brother Jim is headed for distant places, there really isn't much to keep a working news person active on the national news beat these days.

(I never realized what a dull place Plains, Georgia could be without Billy or Jimmy on the scene. Just another dumb peanut town full of uncomfortable tourists looking for a place to go potty.)

I wish now I had stuck with you these last few weeks. Wow! You've been a busy little governor, I'll say. Tracking down Toyotas in Tokyo, plotting with princes in San Francisco, and now off to Alberta to grab off a few billion cubic feet of gas for us deflated Californians. You sure keep moving!

That's just the point us news persons were kicking around the other day, on the bus back from Lance's hanging.

"Why does Jerry Brown keep moving around so much?" That was the question. We had some fun, I can tell you, trying to come up with the answer.

Joe Blatz of the Globe (you'll remember they endorsed Reagan in '70) suggested "Jerry simply believes that a moving target is harder to hit."

Only three of the ten news people on our bus shared that opinion however (two were asleep and Jack Ford from "Rolling Stone" was running alongside the bus at that moment.)

Henry Hanks from Lodi had an interesting explanation as to why you travel so much: "Jerr learned one thing from his daddy ... when things aren't going well at home, then get to hell out!"

(Five of the news people were agreed to that explanation, including Lou Grant from the LA Tribune.)

Which is why I am writing to you at this time, old friend Jerr. Is it possible that Edmund G. Brown, Jr. would run away from a fight??

I find that hard to believe. Sure, the stupid legislature failed to pass the tax relief bill you've been promising the people all year. (Damned those pesky Republicans!) And sure, they even threw out the Peripheral Canal which was clearly supported by a majority of Californians ... the majority of whom live in Los Angeles County. (Those damned Republicans again.)

Your Farm Labor Settlement is falling apart at the seams. Everybody is demanding more energy but no one wants those smelly oil tankers unloading at their harbor. And now Toyota announces they're passing up beautiful, attractive California to build their assemly plant in Ohio, or Illinois, or anyplace but California.

But all that aside, Jerr, I still cannot believe you would run away from a tight situation! I mean, you're the leader who our readers were advised signed 1178 bills this year without once getting a cramp! And when you vetoed another 124 pieces of legislation, people everywhere (well, almost everywhere) were heard to say: "Atta' boy Jerry!"

And when your Mental Health Department was collapsing in shambles, you stood right up to those news cameras and asserted: "Don't forget it was Reagan who created the damned department in the first place!" Beautiful!

Even now, when the Democratic majority of both houses can't get together to get themselves back to Sacramento in order to push through your tax-relief -welfare bill, do you quiver and shake? Heck no. You step forward and announce: "I'm off to Alberta to explore for gas to re - inflate the California economy."

That is what I told those news persons on the bus, Jerr. I told them you were no quitter. Just a governor who likes to keep moving, that's all.

By the way, if you come across President Jim in your travels to Alberta and if beyond, would you tell him that the news people on our bus voted Mr. Carter as the "Most Opportune Presidential Traveler Since Teddy Roosevelt Went To Panama in 1906." The vote on that one was unanimous.

Yours as always

Tax vote?

Is the initiative process the only means by which homeowners will find property tax relief? Remarking on the failure of the 1977 Legislature to come to grips with the problem, Assembly Republican leader Paul Priolo observed the solution to be beyond the capacity of the Legislature.

Undoubtedly in anticipation of such a failure on the part of the lawmakers, two separate groups had already commenced circulation of petitions to place the property tax issue on the ballot.

One, sponsored by Wiley Davis of El Cajon, freezes assessments on homes at the value in effect at the time of passage of the measure and reduces tax rates 50 per cent over a two year period following its adoption. It also would exempt all homes of senior citizens which are valued at $40,000 or less. A further provision grants renters a maximum of $75 a year credit on income taxes.

The second proposition, sponsored by Howard Jarvis of Los Angeles and Paull Gann of Carmichael, is even more direct. It freezes assessed values at the 1975-76 levels and limits ad valorem taxes to one per cent. It would permit an increase of the tax rate of up to two per cent a year to meet inflation. It would also restrict local government from imposing other taxes without a two-thirds approval of the electorate.

Both measures provide for changes in valuation for new construction or when property is sold.

The beauty of both propositions is their simplicity. Neither exceeds five hundred words. One is barely more than two hundred words. The voters will have no trouble understanding them.

The attorney general's staff has estimated the loss of property tax revenues to local government under either measure as ranging from $4.5 billion to $8 billion annually. Whether the proponents agree with those figures or not, they seem to be content to let the Legislature wrestle with the problems of making up the losses from other sources.

What the proponents are offerring is a chance for the homeowners to call a halt to oppressive property taxes and, in effect, tell the state and local governments to either cut back on costs or find other chickens to pluck.

Since both measures are constitutional amendments the sponsors must secure 499,846 qualified signatures no later than December 2. If either or both are successful the initiatives would go on the June ballot. If both are on the ballot and both are approved the one with the most votes would prevail.

The question at the moment is whether the failure of the Legislature to act on the tax issue will spur the success of signature gathering. No doubt Governor Jerry Brown had such thoughts in his mind when he indicated he might call the Legislature back before its scheduled return in January.

However, even if he did, is there any prospect that the lawmakers can find the agreement in a few short weeks the eluded them for nearly eight months before recess? And, if the lawmakers do come up with something in special session or early next year, will it be enough to satisfy the homeowners and forestall passage of the initiative proposals?

It would seem the best way to head off the initiatives would be for the Legislature to adopt something close to that proposed by the citizens' propositions. That would be a simple, concise measure dealing solely with roperty tax relief for homeowners, leaving the multitude of other problems which they had woven into the defeated tax bill to be considered in separate measure.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: As a German-American I'm shocked by the number of women involved in criminal acts in Germany. When I was there in the '20s, I think women wouldn't even have considered any kind of violence. Women were in the home and liked it. What's happening to all the old values we lived by? I don't think it's good for any country when women commit violent acts. I look at my granddaughters and I feel that the changes in women are awful. I worry for them and men today. — L.V.

DEAR L.V.: I'm sure you'd agree that violent behavior is bad in men as well as women. The rise in female crime in Germany is paralleled in other countries. In the United States recent reports show that the number of women arrested since 1970 has risen three times faster than the number of men. According to Dr. Horst Schueler-Springorum of Munich University, a decade ago only 11 to 14 individuals out of 100 convicted for crimes were women. Today. it is estimated that one in three criminals is a woman.

A German woman criminologist, Prof. Freda Adler feels that guns help to equalize the difference in the physical strength of men and women and that this, in part, accounts for the rise among women in crimes involving firearms.

Some feminists feel that women may now be reacting in anger about the roles they've been forced to play for so many years. Women are not by nature passive and I don't know that you can assume women were so satisfied with their earlier roles just because they stayed in the kitchen.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband insists that our son enter competitive sports, the kind of "win-or-die" games. Often, after he's lost, the boy has trouble sleeping. My husband feels we live in a highly competitive world and he wants the boy to learn the how-to-succeed game before he's 12, or be well on his way by then. I can't fight my husband on this anymore, but what can I do? I'd like to help my son so he won't grow into a mean, aggressive man who feels cheated unless he's on top of every situation. — C.G.

DEAR C.G.: I think you can help your son by presenting a different point of view that will temper his losses, and at least let him know that all people don't see the world this way. This will help give him perspective and balance. Try to introduce him to some art form, painting, poetry or music, where the individual's concentration is on competing with himself rather than winning over others.

Several studies have indicated that highly competitive sports were psychologically and emotionally damaging to youngsters. However, a University of Vermont psychologist, John Burchard, attempted to measure such side effects by studying 122 Pee Wee hockey players during that state's recent tournament.

He found that the 11- and 12-year-old players took out their frustrations verbally on themselves and the referees, but not on the opposing players and that there was little difference in aggression among those on the winning and losing teams. He concluded that competitive environment may not be all that disruptive. It does not elicit aggression and hostility per se.

I still think it's important, however, for you to express your views freely, to give your son a more balanced outlook.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read a column of yours about the reader whose nose turned red. My nose has gradually turned red but it has no enlarged veins. I stopped using cleansing cream but now I would like to know if it is all right to use Crisco vegetable shortening as a cleansing cream. I use cold creams or baby oil as a night cream and a face lotion under my makeup during the day.

Should I stop using these also or what should I do? I am 65 with very dry skin and will do what you say.

DEAR READER — One of the things the skin does as it gets older is to stop producing as much oil from the sebaceous glands and it gets dry. Unfortunately the nose and sometimes the forehead may even get more oily.

The red nose with dilated blood vessels is called rosacea or acne rosacea. I am sorry to say we do not know what causes it but we do know that it can be aggravated by anything that increases flushing of the skin. This includes heat, saunas, some facial packs, medicines that are used for increasing the circulation, alcohol, wines, spices and caffeinated beverages such as coffee, tea and colas.

If you have ever eaten a spicy meal you may have broken out in a sweat later. The spices may cause the face to flush and it is this action that leads to their aggravating acne rosacea. Many people do not realize that coffee, tea, and spices are factors in this disorder but have only heard that it is caused by drinking alcoholic beverages. I might add it occurs to many people who have never had a drop of alcohol in their lives.

Some dermatologists give a course of tetracycline antibiotics for it. The treatment takes about four weeks before noticeable improvement is seen.

While this is not the same condition that we see with simple acne with blackheads, whiteheads and pimples, it is probably best to avoid greasy substances on the skin of any type. This includes the Crisco, vegetable oils of all types and greasy face lotions. If you have very dry skin why not use a very small amount of baby oil just over the dry areas and be careful not to get it on the nose area. After you have applied it, then carefully wipe it off and only a thin film will remain. That should be enough to help the skin stay moisturized.

Also, most cosmetics are really hard on skin. They look nice but when the show is over carefully clean your entire face with good soap and water and then use your baby oil on the dry areas only.

Q. "WHAT IS SOIL MADE OF ?"
ANNETTE PEYNDO SAN DIEGO, CA
A. SOIL IS MADE UP OF BITS OF ROCK AND MANY CHEMICAL ELEMENTS MIXED WITH HUMUS, THE DECAYED REMAINS OF PLANTS AND ANIMALS
© 1977 by NEA Inc. T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.
DICK Rogers

Nearly all soil in the world began as solid rock.

Nature has been at work for millions of of years weathering and crumbling the rocks into tiny fragments.

But the soil in which plants grow is made up of more than bits of rock.

It is a mixture of many things.

A main ingredient in soil is humus, formed when roots, plants, and the remains of animals decay, adding important materials to the soil.

Soil also contains moisture, living organisms and chemical elements of many kinds.

Soils can be different colors. A dark color can mean fertile (good for growing crops) soil-rich in humus. A yellowish color often means sandy, infertile soil.

Water dissolves the humus and other foods so they can be absorbed by the roots of living plants.

When soil is used for growing crops, many of the minerals in the soil are used up.

Fertilizers replace the minerals and help keep the soil fertile.

Opening lead — A♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

All roads led to Rome in the bidding of today's hand. Every South player opened one spade and while there were quite a few bidding sequences from then on, the final contract was always the same.

The bidding in the box shows the approved sequence which was also the most popular one.

Most West players opened the ace of hearts. After that lead those who were smart enough to cash the ace of clubs held declarer to five; those who looked around for a miracle and led anything else watched declarer run off the rest of the tricks with no trouble at all.

A couple of declarers were held to 10 tricks for very bad scores. West opened the 10 of diamonds against them and since they were afraid of a ruff, they simply drew trumps, cashed five diamonds and had to lose three tricks in hearts and clubs.

This would have been the correct line in rubber bridge. We feel that in match-point duplicate it would have been better play to lead the king of hearts and play to make five.

Adventist lecture series

LIVERMORE — The members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Livermore will present Mr. Clifford Ward of Modesto as speaker in a three-lecture series on the use of record tapes on lay evangelism.

The lectures will begin Friday, Oct. 7, 7 p.m. at the church at 243 Scott St., and continue on Saturday, Oct. 8 at the 11 a.m. worship service. The series will conclude Saturday afternoon at the 2 p.m. service.

Brother Ward is a lay member of the church who has turned seemingiy unrelated talents into a rewarding livelihood and most successful business venture. A zeal for soul winning, combined with an interest in electronic tape recording, has made him Director of the "Reach Out For Life Tape Library," which is a religious cassette tape recording service.

His tapes now have a world-wide distribution, with sales amounting to more then one-quarter million dolllars in the past year.

Baptists sell stock, protest

The Southern Baptist Sunday School Board has sold its 2,500 shares of American Broad-casting Co. stock in disapproval of ABC programming "related to the abuse of human sexuality, violence and perversion."

Dr. Charles Molenkamp, Chairman of the Deacon Board of Evangelical Free Church, looks on as Ron Goodman, Church Chairman, turns a shovel of dirt in the recent ground-breaking at 6900 Valley Trails Drive, in Pleasanton.

Moratorium called for on sterilization abuse

WASHINGTON AP — A first-of-its-kind national conference on sterilization abuse has urged a moratorium on sterilization until federal guidelines have been established.

A resolution, approved by about 60 representatives of churches, women groups and civil rights corganizations, singled out such operations in Puerto Rico and among American Indians as special problems.

The coference, called by the Interreligious Foundation for Community Organization, an agency of the National Council of Churches, heard a number of so-called "horror stories" about recent sterilization procedures by government agencies.

Various reforms proposed included a waiting period of 30 to 60 days between consent for sterilization and surgery, requirements that the subject be at least 21 and receive adequate councelling in her own language.

Evangelicals break ground

Construction on the building has now begun. Church Chairman, Ron Goodman, turns a shovel full of dirt, as Dr. Charles Molenkamp Chairman of the Deacon Board, looks on.

Aging Workshop

HAYWARD — The Dept. of Aging, Catholic Charities, Diocese of Oakland will sponsor an Aging Workshop on five consecutive Tuesdays, from Oct. 11 through Nov. 8, at St. Joachim, 21250 Hesperian Blvd., either 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon, or eveinings, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The course will provide information and train volunteers to work in the field of aging.

Energy Saving REGUTEMP
AUTOMATIC CLOCK THERMOSTATS

Both Regutemp models are designed to replace the most popular sizes and styles of central, low-voltage thermostats. They feature their own base plates or accessories which cover the area of the old unit, so there's no problem with old paint, wallpaper or holes showing. The Regutemp is designed for 24 volt thermostats commonly found in the home. It cannot be used with, and extreme care should be taken that it is not installed in a 110 volt system. Naturally, to be safe at all times, power should be shut off before attempting installation. You can easily program an automatic daily saving-adjustment for any interval from 4 to 20 hours, for any range of 0 to 40 degrees. The nickel-cadmium cell which runs the clock movements is automatically recharged by the existing thermostat power circuit, and is designed to deliver up to 10 years life under normal operating conditions. The cell is easily replaced by removing the cover of the Regutemp and simply slipping out the old, and inserting in a new cell.

Billy Graham speaks out on Elvis' death, sees evangelistic awakening in country

NEW YORK (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham says he doubts he'll ever retire but that age probably will force him to give up his massive crusades in five or six years. He says his family history indicates he'll die in the next 10 years but that he looks forward to it.

"I'll be glad to get away from the pressures under which I live every day and get in the presence of Christ," he says. "And I hope He lets me rest a while and then gives me another job somewhere else because I really believe that I'm going to a literal heaven."

Graham, 58, made his remarks in a three-hour, taped interview at his mountaintop home near Montreat, N.C., with David Lawrence, editor of the Charlotte Observer. Following are question and answer excerpts:

Q. "You must get physically and mentally exhausted. How do you keep up with this sort of pace?"

A. "This may sound strange in a way but I can only explain it through prayer. I believe because my work is known in many parts of the world that people pray for us every day. And I just feel sustained supernaturally. I'm not a strong person. I never have been a very strong person."

Q. "Physically?"

A. "That's right. I do a lot of exercising and I have to work hard to keep myself physically up. I've had all kinds of little problems. I've had pneumonia four times since 1960, and I've had just little things like even my salivary gland removed on the right side due to stones. I've had two prostate operations. From phlebitis, I had a blood clot in the inner vein of the leg."

Q. "Will you ever retire?"

A. "I don't think that I can retire as long as there is a spiritual need, and there'll always be one. I'll continue as long as the Lord has given me the strength to communicate the Gospel. Then if I do retire from these big massive crusades — which I'm sure I will in the next five or six years because I won't have the physical strength to do them — I'll probably write. I love to write..."

Graham told of his beginnings in mass evangelism in 1949 at a time when he says it was in the "Elmer Gantry period" and associated with emotional, anti-intellectualism.

Q. "And big love offerings?"

A. "Big love offerings. Every evangelist I ever heard of when I started, at the end of their meetings which might last a month or six weeks as ours did and Billy Sunday's did and Dwight Moody's did, the collection the last four or five nights would go to the evangelist. Well, there would be huge collections...

"...I went to Los Angeles to start this crusade ... We didn't call it a crusade. They were called campaigns and it was in a tent. But nobody had ever heard of me; there wasn't even a line in the paper except a small ad...and we went for three weeks.

"The Friday a few days before we were to close, the place was crawling with reporters. And I said, 'What has happened?' And they said, 'You've just been kissed by William Randolph Hearst,' and the next day it was headlines in all his newspapers."

Q. "Did you ever meet Hearst?"

A. "I've never met him in my life. I didn't know what had happened until Bill Hearst, his son, later told me what he thought happened. He said he thought that his father was very interested in religion and that his father had come to the tent and had listened to me preach ... that he and Marion Davies, the actress who was Hearst's long-time mistress, came."

By 1952, worried about the money-reaping image of mass evangelism, Graham said he consulted leaders of the then Federal Council of Churches about how to avoid that image.

"...And I said, 'I'll never hold another meeting where love offerings are taken. I want you and your staff to draw up a plan where an evangelist like myself can operate and have financial integrity and not take love offerings and not have this emphasis on money.'

"They drew up a plan that we would incorporate and that each of us be paid a salary and that salary would be published. And that the corporation would pay our expenses in addition to our salary. That's how we started the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association."

Q. "It seems to me that there's a danger that Billy Graham would not be seeing enough ordinary people."

A. "There is definitely that danger and I have to work at it. I was talking to Johnny Cash about it ... and he said, 'Billy I always feel that I have to get with the ordinary common people two or three times a year so that I don't lose that touch.' And I feel the same way, except I am with ordinary people more than people think because a great part of my life is spent counseling people with their problems...

"But here's a problem, if I meet a president or if I meet an Arnold Palmer, or play golf with Jack Nicklaus, that gets in the newspaper and people say well he's hobnobbing with presidents and famous people, when 90 per cent of the people I see are not famous at all..."

Q. "Did you know Elvis Presley?"

A. "No, I never met him. But I believe I will see him in heaven because Elvis Presley was deeply religious, especially the last two or three years ... he, even when he was a boy always wanted to be a preacher. That was a side of Elvis Presley, I think, people didn't know."

Graham said he saw an "evangelical awakening" in the country.

"I think a lot of young people today are searching for a purpose and a meaning and they want the sense of security that faith in Christ can bring. I mean if I know if I die today that I am going to heaven immediately, then this affects my life here. And I'm pretty sure in the next 10 years I'll die because of the history of my family, my father, his two brothers...

"...I look forward to it. I mean death to me offers no fear at all — it only has anticipation."

Jewish lectures

LIVERMORE — "Where Are We Now?" Perspectives on the Jewish Condition," a series of four lectures on the central issues facing Jews and Judiasm today, will take place in the coffee house of the cafeteria building at Cal State Hayward starting Nov. 17, 8 p.m.

The lectures are sponsored by the Southern Alameda County Area Council and Jewish Education Council of the Jewish Welfare Federation of Alameda and Contra Costa Counties in cooperation with the University of Judaism, Los Angeles.

Four lectures include: Abram D. Sachar, Chancellor of Brandeis University, will speak on "Decisive Moments in Jewish History": Nov. 17; William Frankel, editor emeritus of the London Jewish Chronicle, will discuss "Separatism or Integration...The Jewish Dilemma": Dec. 15; Rabbi Harold M. Schulweis, professor of Contemporary Jewish Life at the University of Judaism, will talk about "Middle Classism and Judiaism: The Ambitions and Frustrations of the Children and of the Jewish Middle Class": Feb. 9, 1978;

And Dan Rottenberg, newspaper reporter, editor and author, wil speak on "Finding Our Fathers...The Joys of Ancestor Hunting": Feb. 23, 1978.

Tickets may be purchased from Al Streicher at 447-5846 and Ken Trigger at 447-9674.

Birth class offered

Classes in the Billings method of natural family planning are being given in Livermore at St. Michael's Education Center.

The first class was held Wednesday. It was primarily an introduction with comparisons of other methods and explanations of the method itself.

Couples who want to use the Billings, often called ovulation, method to achieve or to avoid pregnancy will be given four additional classes. Those will be held Oct. 19, Nov. 2, Dec. 14 and Jan. 11.

Individual counseling and detailed instructions will be given at that time.

Registration is required for the sessions. They can be made by calling Bob and Juanita Berlo at 443-4918, or the Family Life Center in Walnut Creek at 933-8833.

Y-Women

Wednesday, Oct. 12 Dr. Joseph Baxley, a marriage counselor, will speak at the Y-Women's meeting at 9:30 a.m. at the First Baptist Church in Pleasanton.

Valley women are invited and a playschool group is available for pre-school children. For more information call Andie Carroll at 846-1417.

Program for teen girls

A six-week program for teenage girls on "God, sex and you" is being presented by the Family Life Center, 2041 Mt. Diablo Blvd., Walnut Creek. Cost for the series is $6. Interested girls in their teens are welcome. For more information call the center at 933-8833.

VCSD seeks county okay to handle cityhood funds

DUBLIN — Despite warnings from their legal counsel, the Valley Community Services District (VCSD) will ask Alameda County supervisors for permission to act as the public agency that would administer $1000 to Dublin's Incorporation Committee.

VCSD directors overrode Counselor James Parmelee's advice Tuesday night during a regular board meeting.

"It is not appropriate for your district to act as intermediary," Parmelee cautioned. "Your district does not have the authority to act as an expert in this matter."

The $1000 was originally allocated in 1976 to the Dublin Chamber of Commerce by county supervisors to pursue a study of the feasibility of incorporating Dublin.

Since then, the chamber has backed away from lending any official support to the study. They are going to do a survey among their members to see if the chamber should become officially involved again.

In the capacity of private resident, chamber Vice-President, Dave Burton organized the Dublin Incorporation Committee last March. The $1000 became available to this committee with one stipulation. County supervisors said the money had to be doled out through the auspices of a public agency.

Burton sought help from VCSD. Lila Euler, VCSD director, said she conferred with the county administrative office staff. She reported it was her understanding VCSD could act in the capacity of the administrative public agency.

Parmelee said it was his belief that the board of supervisors' original resolution stated the $1000 was given to the Dublin chamber and was to be distributed by an "expert."

Burton requested VCSD help since Beverly Lane offered to complete the Incorporation Committee feasibility study for $750. This fee would come out of the $1000 budget, Burton explained.

Lane has written a thesis on incorporating cities. She was also Chairperson of Taxpayers for Local Control (TLC) which was an organization involved in the effort to incorporate Danville/Alamo and San Ramon last year.

Burton said Alameda County's first distric supervisor, Valerie Raymond told him the county would probably charge $15,000 to perform the same task Lane will do for $750.

Burton said he did not expect VCSD to sponsor the study. He only wanted them to act as a conduit for the $1000.

National science grant earmarked for Chabot

Chabot College-Valley Campus has been named one of 24 recipients out of 300 applicants for a $16,557 grant from the National Science Foundation.

The award, in the science for citizen category, will be used to fund a series of Saturday workshops on solar energy sponsored by the Valley Campus and Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

The grant peoposal was developed by campus dean Dr. Barbara Mertes in consultation with chemistry instructor Arthur Deleray and LLL personnel Carroll Maninger and David Dorn. Early support for the for the project was received from the city councils of Livermore and Pleasanton and the chambers of commerce in Dublin, Pleasanton and Livermore.

Deleray will serve as co-director of the project with Mertes and Gabrielle Meeker will serve as conference director and manager.

Valley Campus is currently forming a citizen's advisory board to aid personnel from the college and LLL in designing the content and direction of the workshops which have been scheduled in 1978 for Jan. 28, Feb. 25, and March 4, 11 and 18.

Particular emphasis in the workshops will be given to the advantages and disadvantages of solar energy for contractors, architects, homeowners and municipal representatives.

For additional information contact Gabrielle Meeker, 443-5030.

FAST EVAPORATION

Water evaporates from lakes, rivers and oceans throughout the world on sunny summer days at the rate of some 16 million tons a second making the air muggy and humid. The moisture eventually returns to the earth as rain, snow or some other form of precipitation.

Identity search for handicapped planned

A statewide effort to locate and identify every handicapped California child and youth not enrolled in an education program will be launched throughout the state next week by county and local school district agencies, Wilson Riles, state Superintendent of Public Instruction, announced Thursday.

The effort, dubbed Search and Serve, is aimed at finding potentially many thousands of young people from infancy to age 21 who are physically or mentally handicapped and who have never been served by educational programs.

"We cannot afford to continue this loss of human potential and missed personal opportunity," Riles said.

The new program was pilot tested in five California counties, including Alameda, in 1976-77.

All forms of communications will be used to find children who qualify— including posters, news releases, television and radio spots, presentations for community groups and pamphlets.

Once identified as needing help, educational services will be provided as quickly as possible. Riles cautioned, however, that full funding and services cannot be provided until "we know the full extent of the problem."

Parents of eligible children or persons who know of eligible children should contact their local public school.

Riles said parents will be involved in the entire process and full privacy is assured for all information provided.

Education of the handicapped is no longer regarded as a charity, he asserted. Both federal and state legislation says that all handicapped children can benefit from educational programs and therefore must be served.

The California Master Plan for Special Education, adopted in 1974 by the state Board of Education, says that "public education in alifornia must seek out individuals with exceptional needs and provide them an education appropriate to those needs."

At present, about 330,000 handicapped infants and young people in California are receiving educational services.

At the local level, Search and Serve is directed by the offices of county and local school agencies. Participation also includes local units of state agencies, local public and private organizations, associations and firms of all kinds, parents and interested individuals.

Valley facility offers day care for children

Working parents in the Valley, particularly single parents, constantly are on the lookout for good child care services. The need is especially critical for infants under 2½ years and school-age children five to ten years.

"Family Day Care" is a program offering child care in a home setting and is considered ideal for these ages. For infants it offers an ideal setting setting with one adult and for school-age children it offers a home base where their different needs can be met flexibly.

Providing family day care can give people the opportunity and free of working in their home, providing regular income, flexible hours and companionship for their own children.

To assist in this, Valley Child Care is an independent, non-profit corporation funded by the state department of education and offers subsidy monies for parents using child care and support services for people caring for children in their homes. Valley Child Care is located in Livermore at 1520 Catalina Ct. and serves the Dublin, Pleasanton and Livermore areas.

Through VCC family day care providers can receive state food disbursement monies, referral services for placements in the home, toy and book lending libraries and infant and children's furniture and equipment. It also offers professional workshops on taxes, insurance, child development, activities and other topics. Persons interested in caring for children in their homes can call Valley Child Care at 455-5111.

Unit rejects color scheme in Livermore

LIVERMORE — The three remaining storefronts at Livermore Arcade will blend with their surroundings, but the proposed color scheme for a store planned at 899 Rincon would not be compatible with the neighborhood.

That's the verdict of the Design Review Committee at its recent meeting. The committee approved the last three vacant spaces at Livermore Arcade after Paul Johannson, architect, presented the designs. The stores will be enclosed to match the rest of the store fronts, but the three spaces have not yet been leased.

However, the committee rejected plans for converting the existing service station lube bays to a convenience store at 899 Rincon because it felt the "garish" blue and gold color scheme would not be be acceptable in the surrounding residential area. The Atlantic Richfield Company representative said they would review their plans and present another application.

The application from Leslie Jacobs for site plan approval to convert the building at 2787 First St. into a photo studio was recommended for approval. The committee also asked that consideration be given to minimum parking requirements for the location since the photo studio will be by appointment only and parking requirements will be lower. The recommendation was that more consideration be given to landscaping and less to parking in the application.

Clue in search for Burleigh

Walnut Creek police are now following up what may be a clue in the disappearance of 21-year old Lou Ellen Burleigh of that city on Sept. 11.

A witness reported to police that he saw a man who may have been interviewing Burleigh for an alleged job use a public telephone in the Safeway Store parking lot near South Broadway and North Main Street.

Lab tests new heat exchanger

A new heat exchanger capable of efficient operation even with the most difficult geothermal fluids was successfully tested recently by the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory.

The test at the geothermal component test facility near El Centro, Calif. marked the first use of the binary-cycle process to generate electricity from geothermal energy in the United States and also the first use of a direct contact heat exchanger in the binary cycle process.

The project was funded by the Energy Research and Development Administration, now the Department of Energy, and is being conducted by LBL with a consortium of engineering firms from Colorado and Florida.

Instead of the conventional cycle using two loops, one for hot geothermal brine and the other for the vapor which in turn drives a turbine to generate electricity, the present test used direct contact between the two loops.

By mixing the two fluids, the heat of the brine is transferred to the working fluid vapor which is then separated from the brine and drives the turbine.

"The new exchange process has the advantage of eliminating scale deposites caused by cooling of the geothermal brine which restrict the transfer of heat and would require frequent shutsaid the project manager, Robert Fulton.

The prototype system tested completed 500 hours of operation marking the end of the first series of tests. The test generator produced 7.5 kilowatts of electricity. Future plans call for a direct contact heat exchanger in a 500 kilowatt plant by 1978.

Vote for mayor drive planned

LIVERMORE — City Councilman Dale Turner is gearing up for an initiative campaign to allow Livermore citizens to decide if they want to vote directly for the mayor.

Turner says he is preparing the petitions and organizing for December, when he can begin collecting signatures for the March ballot. He needs to get 15 per cent of the registered voters, or as he estimates, about 2,300 names to put the issue on the ballot.

The issue came to a head at last week's city council meeting, when Turner, one of two senior council members, announced he would seek to put the issue on the ballot.

Indian program aide named in Livermore

The trustees of the Livermore Valley Joint Unified School District have appointed Amerlia L. McClure of livermore to head the district's Native American Indian program as the program specialist.

McClure is a recent graduate of Cal State Hayward with a degree in business administration and is now a graduate student in public administration there.

McClure is married with two sons age 20 and 17 years. Her husband, Ray is an engineer at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

Yankees even it up

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Guidry pitched a brilliant three-hitter and designated hitter Cliff Johnson awakened a slumbering New York offense with a home run and double that moved the Yankees to a 6- 2 victory over Kansas City Thursday night, tying the American League championship playoff series 1-1.

Guidry, the slender left-hander with an exploding fastball who was New York's most dependable starter during the regular season, overpowered the Royals, who had walloped three home runs in winning the opening game of the best - of - five series.

But it took Johnson's booming bat and a vital second chance provided when catcher Darrell Porter was unable to corral the designated hitter's foul pop to get the Yankees going.

Left-hander Andy Hassler was nursing a 1-0 Kansas City lead and had retired 11 straight Yankees' hitters when Johnson came to bat with one out in the fifth. The muscular New York DH popped a twisting foul near the screen and Porter was unable to snare the ball.

That gave Johnson a second chance and he made the most of it, walloping a 1-2 pitch deep into the center field bleachers, well beyond the 417-foot sign — one of the deepest spots in Yankee Stadium.

The shot tied the score 1-1 and brought the capacity crowd of 56,230 — largest of the season in New York — alive.

Hassler retired the next batter, but Willie Randolph singled to left, then trotted to second on a balk. Bucky Dent followed with another hit to left and Randolph raced home, giving the Yankees the lead for the first time.

But the 2-1 edge lasted only as long as it took Kansas City to bat in the sixth. After Frank White struck out leading off — one of seven strikeouts Guidry had in the game — Fred Patek doubled to the base of the right field wall. Hal McRae then walked and George Brett bounced to third baseman Graig Nettles.

Nettles threw to second for a forceout, but McRae's rolling block upset Randolph at second base and Patek continued home with the tying run.

The Yankees argued bitterly with umpire Marty Springstead, claiming interference, but the play stood.

According to Baseball Rule 7.09 (f), a play is ruled interference if "any batter or runner who has been put out, hinders or impedes any following play being made on a runner."

In Springstead's view, the interference had not been committed, and the score was tied.

But the Yankees untied it quickly. With one out in the bottom of the sixth, Thurman Munson singled for one of his three hits in the game. Reggie Jackson popped out, then Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog wenT to his bullpen, summoning Mark Littell to relieve Hassler. It turned out to be a vital mistake.

Lou Piniella greeted Littell with a ringing single to left on the reliever's first pitch. Then Johnson drilled a 1-1 pitch into left field, scoring Munson and putting New York in front again, this time 3-2.

That brought up Chris Chambliss, who beat the Royals for the pennant a year ago with a ninth-inning, fifth-game home run against Littell. This time, the strategy was an intentional walk, loading the bases.

Randolph followed with a shot to third that went right through obrett's legs for an error, allowing two more Yankee runs to score. That made it 5-2 and Guidry got another run to work with in the eighth when Jackson singled, stole second, advanced to third on a long fly and scored on Randolph's two out single. The cushion was plenty for Guidry. The youngster, who rescued the Yankees' highpriced but often injury-plagued pitching staff during the regular season, mowed down the Royals and allowed only one runner after McRae walked in the sixth.

Besides Patek's double, the only other hit off Guidry until a ninth-inning single by Brett, was a second-inning single by Frank White following a walk to Porter. Kansas City converted that into a run on Patek's sacrifice fly, and Hassler protected that narrow margin, yielding only one hit until Johnson's huge home run in the fifth got the Yankees going.

The victory was particularly vital for New York because the remainder of the series will be played at Kansas City, where the Royals had a remarkable 38-7 record in the final three months of the regular season.

Game Three will be played Friday night and Game Four is scheduled for Saturday afternoon. A fifth game, if needed, would be played Sunday night.

Blister-plagued hurler will start for Phillies

PHILADELPHIA — "I haven't got a blister. I haven't got a problem," snapped Larry Christenson when prodded about the finger condition that plagued him the final month of the regular National League season.

Christenson, a 23 - year - old right-hander, is slated to pitch for the Philadelphia Phillies Friday in the third game of the best - of - five series against the Los Angeles Dodgers for the National League pennant.

In recent weeks, the 6 - foot - 5 Christenson, who won 15 of his last 16 starts and wound up 19-6 for the East Division champions, has been forced to leave games any time after six innings because of a recurring blister on a finger of his pitching hand.

"Don't even talk about it," Christenson told reporters seeking to find out if the condition has improved, and if the Phillies' second best pitcher could expect to go the distance against the Dodgers.

The Dodgers will match 27 - year - old Burt Hooton, 12-7 for the West Division champs, against Christenson. The 6 - foot - 1 Hooton, like Christenson, never has pitched in a postseason game, but he insists that he isn't awed at the prospect.

Hooton doesn't appear concerned about going after the Phillies on their home field, where they won 60, lost just 21 during the season.

"The only difference playing in Philadelphia is that we'll be hitting first and they last. We'll be wearing gray and they'll be wearing their pinstripes," Hooton said.

Both pitchers appeared to be trying very hard to play the part of "cool customers." They'd like everyone to think that the responsibility of helping to snap the 1-1 deadlock in the series is no more than that attached to a regular season meeting.

The Phillies, of course, contend that their home field with its artificial surface, as against the grass field in Los Angeles, gives them a decided edge. They're supremely confident they'll win two of the three games scheduled here, and go into next week's World Series.

Philadelphia won the opener of the two games played in Los Angeles, 7-5, but the Dodgers snapped back to win the second, 7-1. Phillies Manager Danny Ozark, however, said his team accomplished its goal on the West Coast, a split.

Christenson, who is 0-2 against the Dodgers this season with a 12.00 ERA, only would admit that he has had the blister problem throughout his career. He said that it's no worse now than it's ever been. He attributes his poor ERA against Los Angeles to early season problems, before he reached his stride.

Not the least of these problems was the anxiety in waiting out the June 15 trading deadline. It was no secret that Christenson was part of a package the Phillies offered the New York Mets for Tom Seaver.

"When Cincinnati got Seaver, it made me feel better," Christenson said. "I didn't want to leave Philadelphia, this great ball club. If I had been traded to the Mets, it would have been a real bad change in my life."

His job against the Dodgers would appear to be to blunt their home run power. In the first two games, Ron Cey and Dusty Baker hit grand slams, Baker's winning the second game. Then, there are Steve Garvey and Reggie Smith, who with Cey and Baker complete the first foursome ever to hit 30 or more home runs each in one season.

Hooton was 0-2 against the Phillies during the season, but he pitched extremely well as a 2.40 ERA in the two games would indicate. The 200-pound Texan sometimes mesmerizes the Phillies with his knuckle curve.

"All they have is Mike Schmidt and Greg Luzinski for power," says Hooton, ignoring the eight other Phillies who hit homers in double figures. "We have four consistent power hitters."

Hooton, who is even lifetime with Philadelphia, noted that he has had recent success against the East Division club, even though it might not show in the won-lost column. He has a history of being tougher against the better teams.

Hooton tried to dismiss the so-called pressure of a playoff game.

"I don't think along the lines of postseason games when I prepare myself mentally," Hooton explained.

Ballesteros upsets Watson

VIRGINIA WATER, England — Severiano Ballesteros, Europe's finest player, cooly overcame what he called "some very confusing things" and engineered a convincing 5 and 4 upset of travel-weary American ace Tom Watson in Thursday's 36-hole quarter-finals of the World Match Play Golf Championship.

"I tried, tried my hardest," said Watson, the outstanding player in the world this year and current holder of the British Open and Masters titles. "I just couldn't make it happen.

"It's just one of those days you have to chalk up to poor play and try to forget."

In the other matches in cool, cloudy, occasionally rainy weather at the tight, tree-lined Wentworth Golf Club in suburban London, Hale Irwin destroyed Hugh Baiocchi of South Africa 8 and 7; Australian Graham Marsh shot down the little "Super Mouse" Manuel Pinero of Spain, 3 and 2, and Ray Floyd won the last two holes for a 1-up decision over fellow American Lanny Wadkins, the PGA champion.

The quarter-final losers receive $10,500 each from Europe's biggest purse, $225,000.

Friday's semifinals, also over 36 holes, has Irwin, a two-time winner of this international classic, going against Marsh, and the 20-year-old Ballesteros taking on the hefty Floyd.

Watson, a solid favorite with Britain's legal bookies, had his only lead when he dropped a 12-foot birdie putt on the second hole. Ballesteros, however, won the fourth with a two-putt birdie 4, Watson had to concede the sixth and seventh holes, Ballesteros churned into a 4-up lead at the lunch break and Watson never really got within striking distance in the afternoon.

"I hit so many bad shots he had a free run at it," Watson said. "i couldn't put any pressure on him."

Ballesteros, on the other hand, complained of some officiating.

"I saw many very confusing things today," he said. "I hit one they say is out of bounds. But when I get to the ball, it isn't there. Someone has picked it up. I never see that it is out of bounds.

"One time I see Watson drive into the trees," Ballesteros said, and made a swooping, sweeping, sideways motion with his hand. "But we walk down the fairway and there are two balls in the fairway. Very confusing."

Irwin, the firecely competitive former football player who is rapidly building a reputation as the game's best match player, has finished first, first and second in the last three match play championships.

He one-putted four of his first seven holes, chipped in for a winning birdie on the ninth, was nine under par for the 29 holes he played and took it out of reach with an eagle-birdiebirdie burst starting on the fourth hole of the afternoon round.

"That ruined any chance I had at all," said Baiocchi. "I never was really in it."

Jones leads Amador frosh FB

Foothill High School's freshman football team toppled Amador Valley 27-6 behind the running of Bob Jones in a East Bay Athletic League contest last night.

Jones ran for 150 yards in just seven carries and scored once. He also had three interceptions and recovered one fumble.

Gary Kovac scored twice for the winners on runs of two and one yards. Rob Singleton scored the first Falcons touchdown on a five-yard burst. Kovac kicked three of four PAT attempts.

Jones' touchdown came on a simple dive play where he broke several tackles.

Mark Winn and Mike Hickey were outstanding on defense for the winners. Johnson scored the Amador Valley touchdown on an eight-yard run. The PAT attempt failed.

Foothill turned two interceptions into eventual touchdowns.

EBAL's 2nd week

Another huge one for the 'Pokes

Although it's only the second week of the East Bay Athletic League season the eventual league champion could well be determined tonight when Livermore and San Ramon tangle in the former's stadium.

The Wolves and 'Pokes are 1-0 in EBAL action and 3-1 overall. Other games have Dublin at Granada and Foothill hosting Amador Valley. All these games begin at 8 p.m. Tomorrow California hosts Monte Vista at 1 p.m.

SAN RAMON-LIVERMORE

Stopping San Ramon quarterback Guy Houston may well be the key to Livermore's success.

Houston, a 6-1, 190 pound senior, has been awesome so far this season. He completed 15 of 29 passes for four touchdowns and 329 yards to lead the Wolves over Alhambra, 59-6 in a nonleague game. He was also very impressive in a 31-10 victory over Foothill last week.

But Livermore coach Ron Berg feels San Ramon has a host of weapons to throw at his team.

"They have some great wide receivers and a fine tight end," he said. "They can also run with the ball.

"Houston can throw the ball. There's no doubt about that," he went on. "He's probably one of the best quarterbacks we'll face this season. I don't even know if we can stop him. He may be We'll just have to do the best job we can."

But Berg has confidence in his own club.

"We have a pretty good team," he commented. "You never can tell. Anything is bound to happen in a game like this."

The only Cowboy player questionable for tonight's contest is defensive end Greg Palmer. Palmer had a knee injury and may not start. If Palmer doesn't start Greg Berg will probably get the nod.

Defense is the Cowboys' strength. Livermore has allowed just six points in its last three games and is particularly tough against the run.

AMADOR VALLEY-FOOTHILL

Amador Valley, which has shown a greatly improved defense in the last two games, must establish a running game to defeat the host Falcons.

The Dons, 1-0 in EBAL play, have a fine passer in Pat Inglesby and a solid offensive line but their running attack has been dispointing so far this season.

Rob Flores, a returning All-EBAL defensive back from last season, keys the Don running game and must have a good game if Amador Valley is to have a balanced offense.

Foothill's biggest strength the past two seasons has been it's defense. The Falcons, who are winless in EBAL play this year, led the league last season in defense.

However, Foothill has been hampered by injuries this year and mistakes have alos plagued them.

A fumble, interception and a bad center snap led to San Ramon touchdowns against Foothill last week.

Eerie, isn't it

On Sports

If you think Superman battling Muhammad Ali for the right to save the world from alien beings is going to be something you should see what happens when humans and aliens from another planet battle in Deathball, 2000 A.D.

Yes, the Superman-Ali dual which will appear in December's edition of Superman Comics will fade in comparison with Eerie Magazine's unreal drama pitting humans versus reptile-like creatures.

The Eerie articl seems to be a take-off from Roller Ball, that movie about a future sporting event where the aggresive play made a Raider-Steeler matchup seem like a women's group's afternoon tea.

LG-3

Deathball features a veteran human star who is playing his last game before retiring.

The superstar simply goes by the name of LG-3 and he has his name put on his uniform. His team is playing the alien squad and the teams are using a 60-pound basketball full of compressed octanian rubber that has the striking power of lead.

LG-3 has been trained since childhood to play Deathball and he doesn't know how to do anything else.

"I have given my life for my sport... I was bred for this moment," he says while being cheered by the crowd at his introduction before the contest. "It was my destiny."

Talk about devotion to duty!

What no one in the arena knows is that LG-3 has decided he will die on the court rather than face retirement. And he plans to take every alien player with him.

And he does, almost.

Swinging the huge ball in his hand like an outfielder throwing a baseball he kills several aliens on the courtside, before his amazed teammates and the announcer, who, showing more emotion than Bill King, claims the acts were "deliberate murder" (which they were).

In the end LG-3 goes down under a massve attack by the alien bench and he dies with the ball in his hands, the green blood of an alien splattered all over it.

And the crowd was cheering!

Why? Because they finally got their money's worth, according to one of the sideline observers as he tried to explain it to the earth team's coach.

The observer went on to say that "it's a new game. From now on only the winners are going to walk away."

Again, that statement was probably a reference to Roller Ball and the increased violence in sports in general.

It was ridciuling the winner-take-all attitude of some sports teams and coaches.

It's doubtful (and probably impossible) that sports in this country will ever reach the violent level as that which was shown in Eerie but the article did get it's point across.

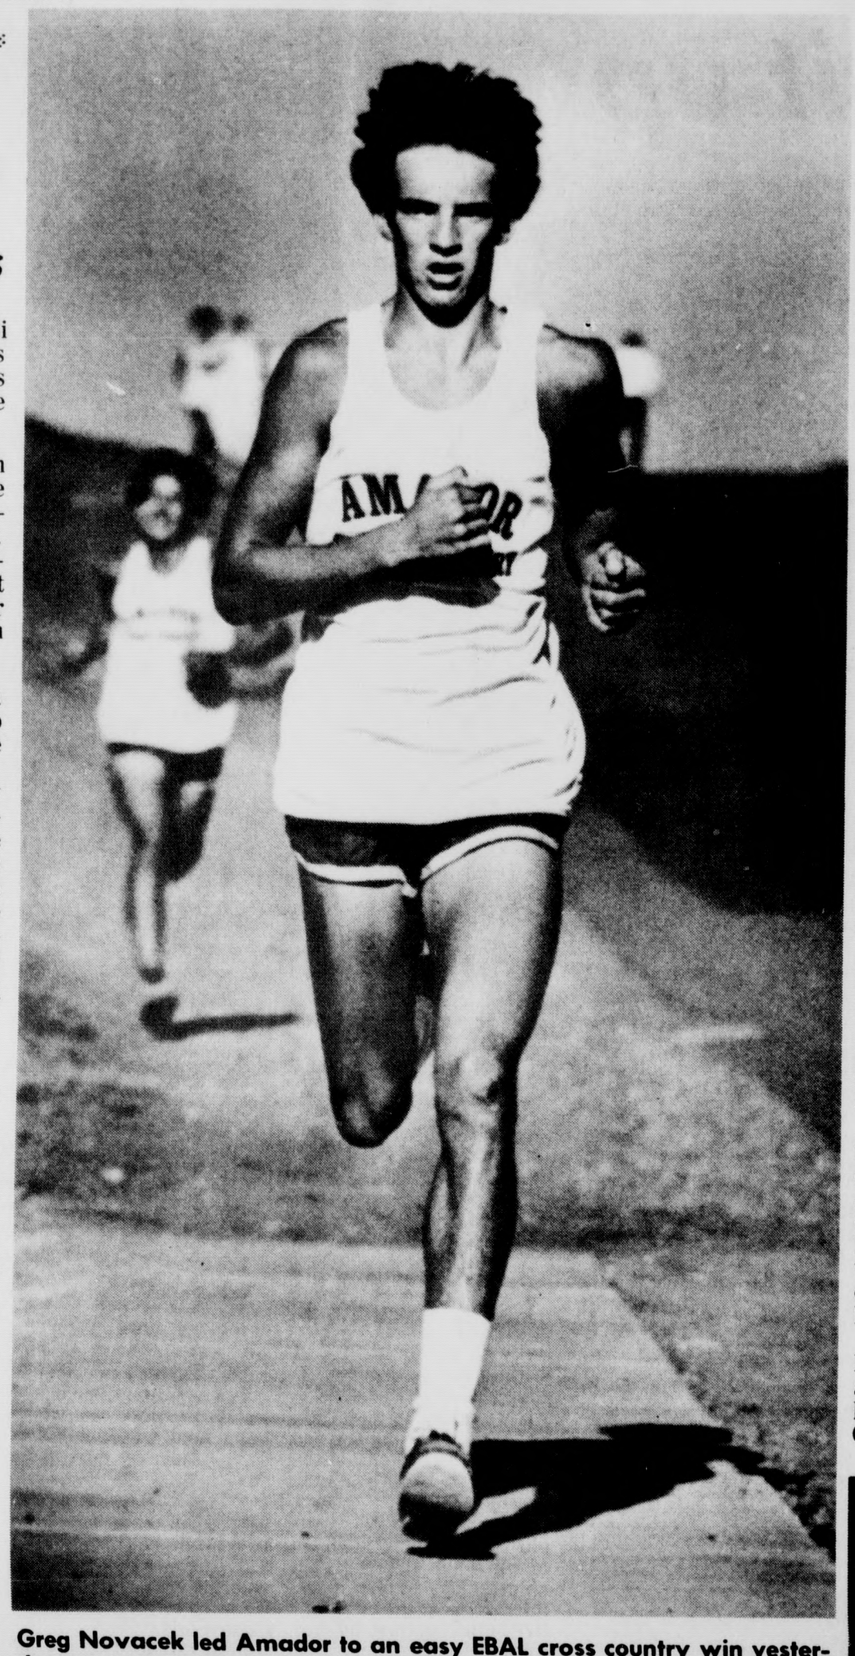
While I seriously doubt if any athlete will ever be murdered in a sporting event in this country there's no doubt that violence is increasing in athletics, particularly on the professional level.

In that way the Deathball article is more down-to-earth (no pun intended) The than a battle between Man of Steel and The Greatest.

Boxing is actually less violent than some other sports now and professional football and ice hockey fans are not that much different in their overzealous support of their teams than the Deathball spectators were.

Yes, Deathball 2000 A.D. has it all over Superman-Ali.

Someone can laugh at the dual between the Man of Steel and Ali but there's nothing funny about the underlining meaning of a inter-planet battle between two teams bent on killing each other.



Greg Novacek led Amador to an easy EBAL cross country win yesterday.

Novacek leads Amador sweep

Visiting Amador Valley High swept the first seven places to easily defeat Dublin, 15-50, in an East Bay Athletic League cross country race yesterday afternoon.

Greg Novacek led the way for the Dons, taking first place with a time of 17:19. Teammate Dave Edney was close behind, clocking a 17:24 for second.

Following Novacek and Edney across the finish line to pick up third-through-seventh place points were Maio Dasilva, Mark Lester, Lloyd Chapman, Chris Waters and Curtis Smith.

The top finisher for Dublin was Steve Hayes, whose time of 18:06 earned him eighth place.

Amador also easily won the girls' competition.

Wendy Behrbaum took an individual first place with a time of 11:36. The race was extremely close, however, and Dublin's Julie Hayes finished only two seconds behind, at 11:38, to take second place.

Amador's Gail Coesngn finished third in 12:32, while Evelyn Knowles of Dublin was fourth with a 13:14 clocking.

Mats shock Pokes

Granada High School stunned visiting Livermore, 4-3, in what probably has to rank as the biggest upset so far in the current East Bay Athletic League tennis season.

An earlier meeting between the two schools resulted in a 7-0 Livermore romp, but Granada was more than ready for the Cowboys this time around.

The match went down to the two doubles pairings, as the score after five singles matches was Livermore 3, Granada 2.

Picking up the deciding victories for Granada were the doubles teams of John Cariveau and David Behrin and Jim Burani and Jeff Peacock. Cariveau and Behrin defeated Rene Meyer and Ken Kemp, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2; while Burani and Peacock won an equally-tough match over Mark Johansen and Tom Niven, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

Picking up singles victories for the Mats were number two Greg Corallo and number three Mike K[illegible]. Corallo defeated Vern Cedarlu[illegible], 6-3, 6-2, while Knell defeated Tod Larson, 7-6, 0-6, 7-5.

Livermore's Steve Williford, unlike the rest of his teammates, had a relatively easy time of it. Williford defeated Murray Dean, 6-1, 6-0.

Teammates Stephan Leupertz and Paul Smith also picked up points for the Cowboys, with straight set victories in number four and number five singles, respectively.

In another EBAL match, Monte Vista picked up an easy victory over Amador, 6-1.

Number one singles player Matt Anger was the only Amador player to pick up a victory, winning over Doug Stone, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

Earning points in singles for Monte Vista were Tripp Gordon, Guy Schlin, Dave Parker, and Ritt Overstreet.

Both Mustang doubles teams were victorious. Dan Schlin and Jeff Southwick defeated Mark Schellman and Mike Rennels, 6-1, 6-0, while Gary Niebur and Pete Cuietusa topped John Costello and Randy Kendall, 6-3, 6-4.

SR unbeaten, topples Livermore

San Ramon High School's volleyball team remained undefeated in East Bay Athletic League play with a 15-13, 15-9 victory over host Livermore last night.

The win gives the Wolves a 5-0 record while the Cowgirls fell to 2-3.

In other EBAL matches Amador Valley rallied to top California 11-15, 15-3, 15-12, Dublin topped Foothill, 15-8, 7-15, 15-2,San Ramon had to come from behind to win both games against the Cowgirls.

The Wolves trailed 13-8 in the first game before Vicki Dolan served seven straight points to put the tilt away for San Ramon.

Livermore had taken the lead on some nifty serving by Kim Bohannon and Paula Ng.

The second game was almost a replica of the first. Down 6-0 the Wolves gradually fought back to tie the score at 6-6 and finally took the lead at 10-8. Chris Cooper sewed up the victory for San Ramon by serving five straight points to give the winners a six-point margin.

Debbie Lloyd and Lind Colbrandt each added three points for the victors.

Wolf coach Mary Ann Paz praised her team's effort.

"What was so good about our win was the way the team came back after trailing twice," she said. "We played well as a team and played excellent defense."

Carolyn Hill sparked Amador Valley's win over California.

Hill served four points in the second game and did some hitting. Cathy Malone was the leading scorer with eight points in a row. Bernie Pla made some nice sets to Jayne Kuhns.

Kuhns had seven serve points to spark a Amador Valley rally in the third game. Cal led, 7-3 before Kuhns led the Don comeback. Hill had two good spikes on second efforts.

Pete Martinez and Cowboys charge into battle with San Ramon.

Glads confident

Chabot College women's volleyball coach Lois Machado is approaching her team's match tonight with Diablo Valley College confidently, to say the least.

Machado declared, "We're not losin anymore matches this season, starting with the Diablo Valley match. We've made some mistakes, sure, but we've learned how to correct them."

The Gladiators' match with the Vikings is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Chabot gym. DVC is 0-3 in Golden Gate Conference play, while Chabot is 1-2, but both teams' marks are deceiving.

Machado said DVC looked impressive in a five-game loss to West Valley College, with is tied with San Mateo for the conference lead with a 3-0 mark. The Vikings gave West Valley a scare, winning the first two games and losing the third by only two points.

Meanwhile, Chabot has fallen to both West Valley and San Mateo in equally close contests.

The Gladiators lost to both schools in five-game matches, including a 15-9, 14-16, 15-7, 10-15, 15-6 defeat to West Valley last Friday.

"I think we'vereached a real turning point in our season," said Machado. "The kids should have a lot of confidence now.

"Probably the most important factor for our team is serving," she added. "I haven't kept records on it, but I'm sure our percentage of successful serves is something like 94 or 95 percent. Our blocking has also improved 100 percent.'

Amador Valley High graduates have played an important part in what successes Chabot's first-year squad has enjoyed so far. Kim Liebert has been the key to the Glads improved blocking, as she racked up four successful stuff blocks against San Mateo and three in the West Valley contest.

Chabot's top offensive threat has been Carmen Macon. The tall freshman has been the Glads' top hitter most of the year and turned in a season-high of 17 successful spikes against West Valley.

Defensively, Debbie Oxsen had led the team in saves in all but one match.

The punch-less bowl

Doug Stevenson keys the Falcons offense at quarterback and Eric Moran, a 6-5, 240 pounder, is the heart of the Falcon defense at end.

DUBLIN-GRANADA

Neither team has showed much scoring punch this season as their defenses have dominated play.

"If we eliminate our mistakes we can move the ball," said Granada coach Don Couch of his 0-1 (2-2 overall) Matadors. "We're not planning any changes on offense. We're going with th same backfield we've gone with."

That would be Steve Robison at quarterback and Steve D'Ambra and Dave Ridgewell at the running backs.

Robison, a returning starter from last season, is also a standout defensive back.

Defense is the Matadors' strong point. Mike Nalty, a 218-pound noseguard, is prehaps the EBAL's outstanding linemen. Kevin Gosney and Billy Maurer have been outstanding at linebacker, according to Couch.

"We're impressed with their offense," Couch remarked. "Their starting quarterback)mike Hardy) is supposed to be hurt but they have two fine running backs and a standout receiver in Dan Pearson."

Lynn Beamon will mann the fullback position for the Gaels and Jon Batchelor will use his 10.1 speed at tailback. Beamon, a junior, has come along a lot in the past two weeks.

Derrick Woolridge, another junior will probably start at quarterback in place of Hardy. He completed one pass against Monte Vista last week but has had little playing time.

MONTE VISTA-CALIFORNIA

California is having offense problems. Running back Chris Miller is out with a bruised thigh and former starter quarterback Tom Woodmansee has quit the team.

Major was impressive against Livermore, gaining over 100 yards through the air. He will probably throw quite a bit to Chuck Cary.

Cal, Washington St.— are they for real?

PULLMAN, Wash. AP — The Pacific-8 Conference clash Saturday between California and Washington State will be a discovery session between two football teams uncertain of their talents.

The only certainty is that the winner will draw respect around the conference.

Game time is 1:30 p.m. at the 27,600-seat Martin Stadium. The contest is California's league opener, and the second Pac-8 game for WSU.

Optimism is high in the camp of the 14th-ranked Golden Bears, who are 4-0 for the first time in 25 years. But California is wary of the Cougars and its own unexpected victories over Tennessee, Air Force, Missouri and San Jose State.

WSU, which upset Nebraska and Michigan State, completed a series of four road games with losses to Kansas and Southern California.

California Coach Mike White said the Bears still present some question marks, in part because of their diversity.

"We haven't won in a similar manner in any two games," he said.

Fullback Paul Jones, a 6-foot-2, 225-pound slugger in the mold of Larry Csonka, is a powerful component of the California attack, gaining 452 yards on 102 tires to rank second in the league. But quarterback Charlie Young has provided the Bears with the kind of leadership they needed for dreams of roses.

Young completed 12 of 15 passes against San Jose in what was called his first "real, real good game."

In seven offensive marches, Young drove the team to six touchdowns and a field goal, a 100 per cent scoring ratio.

WSU quarterback Jack Thompson had a poor performance against USC last week, but the Throwin' Samoan, who led the league and the West Coast in passing in 1976, is an established threat.

"He'll complete some passes. We're just going to have to shut off their running game and make sure he doesn't complete too many," White said.

WSU Coach Warren Powers said he hoped his squad would bounce back from a crushing 41-7 defeat at the hands of Southern California.

"I told them a lot of good teams get best," he said. "We haven't really thought about the Rose Bowl this year. I think any talk like that from us would be very premature. You have to be able to walk before you can run."

Powers said he is emphasizing consistency and fundamentals because mistakes and penalties had doused the offensive fireworks the Cougars showed in their first two games.

"The defense hasn't really played a solid game yet. We've given up what we don't want to give up — the long play," he said.

A low-cost Olympics?

LOS ANGELES — Several representatives of International Sports Federations say they are willing to go along with Los Angeles' desire for a "spartan" 1984 summer Olympics, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

Los Angeles representatives in Monte Carlo for a five-day convention of leaders of 44 sports federations were encouraged Wednesday at this apparent change in attitude. In the past, officials have requested that Olympic host cities provide often-costly facilities, the Times said.

Anton Calleia, representing Mayor Tom Bradley and leader of the four-man Los Angeles delegation, said he intends to take a tough line in informal meetings that begin today with representatives of the federations, the newspaper said.

"Our whole tack is to make no commitments," said Calleia. "We will find out what they want and make our formal proposals later. In a polite way we will then say, 'take it or leave it.' The whole idea of getting the Olympics by promising everything makes no sense."

The last two Olympics — Munich in 1972 and Montreal in 1976 — ran up heavy deficits after millions of dollars were invested in elaborate facilities.

Reflecting the spirit of moderation that seemed prevalent among the federation representatives was Ernst Aimmermann of Wiesbaden, Germany, secretary-general of the International Shooting Federation.

House backs L.A.

WASHINGTON — The House Thursday gave its support to efforts to bring the 1984 Summer Olympic Games to Los Angeles.

The Senate is expected to add its endorsement shortly to the resolution of encouragement offered by Rep. Yvonne Brathwhite Burke, D-Calif.

The city played host to the games in 1932 and much of the sports plant erected at that time still exists. The city is the only bidder so far for the 1984 Olympics.

The resolution, which passed the House without opposition, was a pledge of cooperation and support for the fulfillment of the games "in the highest sence of the Olympic tradition."

Warriors head north

SEATTLE — The Golden State Warriors take their 0-1 exhibition record to the Seattle Center Coliseum tomorrow night for a game with the Portland Trailblazers.

The second pre-season contest will be the first game of a doubleheader, starting at 6:30 p.m. Los Angeles will meet Seattle in the second game.

The Warriors, still plagued by injuries still have 17 players on the roster.

Three of Golden State's stronger forwards, Derrek pickey, Dwight Davis and Wesley Cox are still out with injuries. Davis and Dickey have been sidelined much of last season and this training camp.

Cox, as it turns out, was also battered by injuries during his last two seasons of college ball. It got so bad his junior year, Wesley didn't even practice with his Louisville team mates.

"I hope nobody thinks Wesley was a number one draft choice who took his moeny and got fat, dumb and happy over the summer," Warrior head coach Al Attles. "He's had hamstring problems in the past and as an old hamstring man, I know what he's going through."

A summer of injury enforced idleness left Cox ten pounds overweight and the 6-6, 215-pound forward has not gotten much out of the Warriors practice sessions at San Jose City College. Cox, reasonably enough, looks at the bright side and points out that being injured during the exhibition season is better than being hurt during the regular slate.

Meanwhile, Attles released forwards Larry Pounds and Nate Granger. Pounds was a 1976 draft choice invited back to camp after Golden State made its first cut earlier in the month while Granger was a free agent from South Carolina.

That leaves the Warriors with forwards Rick Barry, E.C. Coleman, Sonny Parker, Larry McNeill, Ray Epps, swingman Marlon Redmond, forward-center Neil Jurgenson, centers Clifford Ray and Robert Parish and guards Ricky Green, Rickey Marsh, Charles Johnson, Charles Dudley, Marshall Rogers as well as the injured players.

Sunday, the Warriors will meet Seattle in Portland and Monday they wrap up an exhausting trip in Omaha against the Kansas City Kings.

The first home pre-season game will be Wednesday, versus Kansas City.

GGC crucial tonight

Chabot College can't lose in football this weekend. But then again, they can't win, either.

The Gladiators draw a bye in this weekend's round of Golden Gate Conference games after dumping West Valley last week to record its first win of the season and even its GGC mark at 1-1.

Tonight the league leaders, DeAnza and surprising Laney, both 2-0, clash in Oakland for undisputed possession of the lead at 7:30 p.m. while San Mateo travels down I-280 to face Foothill at Los Altos Hills, also a 7:30 p.m. contest.

In tomorrow's games, San Francisco visits San Jose at 7:30 p.m. while in a battle of the Vikings, West Valley heads north to Pleasant Hill to face winless Diablo Valley.

The De Anza-Laney clash will feature two of the top rushers in the state, Rich Hersey of the Dons and Laney's Ray Crouse. Hersey leads California Community College runners with 670 yards on 121 carries while Crouse, second in the GGC and 12th in the state, has 349 yards on 73 packs.

Both teams rank in the bottom half of GGC team passing statistics, but are in the top three in rushing. Conversely, their defenses have both been tough against the run, so the edge may go to De Anza, by virtue of quarterback Tice Ferguson's passing.

Though, DeAnza sports no one outstanding receiver, Ferguson has passed for 373 yards in four games while Laney QB Andrei Wallace has put the ball up only 33 times all season.

San Mateo quarterback Ralph Constanzo is third in the state and could prove a thorn in the side of the Owls. Throwing to the likes of Tim Doyle and Ron Walton, Constanzo has completed 55 passes for 844 yards and six touchdowns to lead the GGC.

Foothill signal-caller Damian Shine is second and has the league's leading receiver, Mike Coughlin, to throw to. Shine has passed for 690 yards and four TDs, two of them to Coughlin. Tim O'Brien is also a top receiver for the Owls.

Saturday's action will be less than awe-inspiring as the four clubs with weekend dates have exactly one conference, and three overall, wins between them.

With the bye this week, Chabot quarterback Tom McGinty will have an extra seven days to bask in the glory of being named GGC offensive player of the week. McGinty, a 6-2, 190-pounder from Bishop O'Dowd High School, replaced injured Ron Jones against West Valley and passed for 114 yards while completing 16 of 24 attempts.

On defense the player of the week was 190-pound De Anza line backer Mike McNulty, of Saratoga, who intercepted a pass and had two sacks against DVC. The Southern Vikes won, 21-7.

Chabot sports a statistical category leader this week and a solid one. John Sevo, the former Amador Valley High School quarterback, has punted 15 times for an average of 43.5 yards.

The next player with at least 15 punts is more than five yards behind.

The Glads best runner has been Eric Lane, with 224 yards, Jones and McGinty rank 3-5 in passing and Jeff Evans has grabbed 14 passes for 151 yards. Chabot ranks fifth in team offense and second-to-last in defense.

DVC's primary threats have been the passing combo of Jim Saunders - to - Scott Meader.

Saunders in seventh in the GGC with 304 yards passing and four touchdowns, all of which have been caught by Del Valle High School graduate Scott Meader, who is second in the conference in scoring and sixth in pass receiving.

Scott Hale is also among the pass-catching leaders for the Vikes. Meader has caught 12 for 184 yards while Hale has grabbed 12 for 188 yards.

Toe Jammers stub Ocelots

The Toe Jammers topped the Ocelots 3-1 in Dublin Boys' Under-12 soccer action last week.

David Byrne, Robby Knowles and Jimmy Stevens had the Jammer goals. Steven Waters had the Ocelot score.

Troy Van Dam had an assist for the winners.

Kevin Lynde, Sean Ackley and Tommy Santos had a great defensive day at fullback for the winners.

In Under-10 action the Falcons topped the Invaders 2-1. Mark Cisneros had the losers' goal. Doug Pace and Dan Fraser had the Falcon goals. Keith Moffitt had 10 saves for the winners. Wes Owen, Cisneros and Eric Steindorf combined for 14 for the losers.

The Sun Devils blasted the Cheetas 5-0 in Under-8 action. Pat Smyth had two goals and Robbie Cardinale, Joe Escobedo and Tim Canham each had one for the victors.

Darrell Brinkman, Darrin Brinkman and Eddie Kulak each scored once as the Shamrocks shutout the Superstars 3-0.

Chris Wehunt, Bobby Burden, Pat Heyland and Wayne Yeaw all played well for the winners.

The Chargers stopped the Strikers 3-0. David Welch, Jeff Sundberg and Shawn Armstrong each scored once for the Chargers.

Matt Davis had three saves and Doug Brothers two for the winners.

Moran's two for naught

ALAMO — Teresa Moran won two races but her Foothill High School girls' swimming team fell to host Monte Vista 87-74 here Wednesday afternoon.

Moran won the 200-yard freestyle in 2:19.1 and the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:20.9. Denise Knauer won the 100-yard freestyle in 1:00.4 for th the Falcons and Sarahlynn Wolf took the 100-yard backstrke in 1:23.8.

Foothill also won the 400-yard freestyle relay in 4:12.7 with Wold anchoring.

Monte Vista also took the junior varsity match, 80-57. The Falcons won the 100-yard freestyle and the 50-yard breaststroke.

Dennis Fanucchi of Livermore's Granada Bowl has been elected to a second term as president of the East Bay Bowling Proprietors Association, the group has announced. The association is composed of 18 bowling centers in Alameda and Contra Costa counties. Dennis is also on the Board of Directors of the Northern California Proprietors Association and past chairman of the mebership committee. Fannuchi and his family operate the Granada Bowl and last year expanded the center to 32 lanes with a $1 million remodeling.

A couple of super savers

Jennie McCardy had six saves for the Runners and Kelly Sherridan four for the Riddlers in recent Pleasanton Girls Soccer play.

Merritt Shorr had the losers' goal. Kelley Redden had three saves and Erin Grimes two for the Ragdolls.

The Rebels topped the Rhinos 4-0. Becky Montgomery had two goals for the winners. Sarah McMillian and Heather Mosser each had one.

Tina Perry had three saves for the Rebels. Kim Sliehter had six for the losers.

Lisa Masinter, Nichole Samson and Teeter Ensign were defensive standouts for the Rebels. Nicole Lanowski, Fancy Espinosa and Kelly Wood were defensive stars for the Rhinos.

Calloway to receive MVP award at benefit

SANTA CLARA — There will be an added event at the annual benefit soccer game between the San Jose Earthquakes and Santa Clara University tomorrow night here.

Defender Laurie Calloway will receive his award as Most Valuable Player of the Earthquakes.

Calloways, one of the original 1974 'Quakes, has been a four-year starter at the left defender position.

"It's a rewarding and satisfying honor," said Calloway, who makes his home in Los Gatos. "Being chosen by the fans is more significant to me than if my teammates or anyone else had made the choice. They stood behind the Earthquakes when we were having trouble getting underway, and stayed behind me when I had a bad game. As far as I'm concerned there's 10 other MVP's on the our."

Calloway will be starting in tomorrow's game with Santa Clara. Other standouts include goal keeper Mike Hewitt, defenders John Rowlands and Mark Demling, midfielder Dave Kemp and all-time NASL Ilija Mitic, and forwards Paul Child, Leroy DeLeon and rookie Greg McKeown.

Tickets for the contest will be available at the Buck Shaw stadium gate tomorrow night. Prices are $2 for adults and $1 for students. All proceeds benefit the university's athletic department. Information is available by calling Santa Clara at 984-4063, or the Earthquakes at 998-5425.

Selfridge signed by New York

NEW YORK — The Nets of the National Basketball Association have withdrawn all offers to free agent-holdout Bubble Hawkins, General Manager Bill Melchionni says.

"Hawkins isn't in our plans anymore," Melchionni told theNew York Post. The Nets' GM said he had made a deal with Hawkins, "then Clark Archie Clark, Hawkins' agent called and wanted something else. I told him, 'Either he accepts the deal we had or everything's off.' He didn't take it.

Hawkins stranded

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Linebacker Andy Selfridge, released in preseason by the Miami Dolphins, has signed to play with the New York Giants, the National Football League club says.

Selfridge, who played in 1974 and '75 with the Giants before he was traded to Miami, will fill in on the special teams for Frank Marion, who has a dislocated thumb, and could be used as a spare linebacker.

Selfridge, 28, was dropped by the Dolphins after he flunked Miami's training camp physical two months ago. Selfridge damaged his knee on opening day last season.

A SALUTE TO THE world of comic strips is included in the "Carol Burnett Show" at 10 p.m. Saturday on Channels 5 and 10. The program also will feature Dick Van Dyke, Vicki Lawrence and Tim Conway.

AUTOMOTIVE

Chevrolet's Camaro adds to its image for 1978 with new driving precision and new front and rear appearance. The new appearance includes body-colored front and rear bumper systems of closed cell plastic and flexible outer covers and steel inner supports. A major new option is a T-bar roof with removable roof panels.

Chevrolet's popular Camaro-1978 to feature new front, rear design

The popular styling of the Chevrolet Camaro will be improved for 1978. New front and rear appearance is achieved with the introduction of a body-colored soft nose section and rear bumper.

Camaro is the most popular-selling model in today's sporty market segment, and is expected to remain the leading nameplate in this segment during 1978. Camaro acceptance is based primarily on design consistency in styling, mechanical and handling attributes.

For 1978, the Camaro model lineup will have five models, including the sport coupe and Type LT coupe, and the addition of the Rally Sport (formerly an option), Rally Sport LT and the Camaro Z28 which was reintroduced to the market in mid-1977.

New front and rear design appearance uses the same cellular urethane material featured on the Corvette in place of the aluminum face bar and spring bumper system formerly used. Wedge shaped wraparound taillamps with inboard amber colored direction signal lamps and clear backup lamps dominate the new rear styling.

Other appearance changes for 1978 feature rally wheels in fourteen body colors, new optional aluminum wheels, new door trim design and new cloth standard seat trim.

Chassis improvements feature frame and suspension modifications for more predictable vehicle handling, while 5.0 litre V8 engine weight has been reduced approximately 35 pounds, primarily through the use of an aluminum intake manifold.

The Camaro Rally Sport coupe and the Camaro LT Rally Sport coupe models for 1978 use a bold contrasting paint scheme to further accentuate the sporty character of the design. The forward portion of the roof, hood surface and front header to below the grille opening is painted black metallic. These surfaces are separated from the remainder of vehicle body color with tri-color striping. "Rally Sport" decals appear on the deck lid and front fenders.

Camaro Z28 refinements include a hood panel air scoop with black painted throat, functional front fender air louvers, body-colored rear spoiler and modified body striping. Key elements of the Z28 are a special handling suspension using GR70-15B tires and a 5.7 litre V8 engine with 4-barrel carburetor, dual exhaust outlets and 3:42 or 3:73 rear axle ratio (depending on transmission selection). Suspension revisions for improved handling increase front end rigidity and limit rear axle transverse movement.

Engine application for the Camaro makes use of a standard 4.1 litre (250 CID) six-cylinder with 5.0 (350 CID) and 5.7 (350 CID) litre V8 engines available. A three-speed manual transmission is standard with the 4.1 litre engine.

Only automatic transmissions are available in California and the 5.7 litre V8 with automatic transmission is the only combination available for sale above 4,000 feet.

A major option for the 1978 Camaro is a "Tvbar" twin hatch roof with tinted glass lift-out roof panels operated by a single control latch located on either panel.

Ford unveils '78 cars with prices up $387

DETROIT (AP) — When Ford Motor Co. unveils its 1978 - model cars Friday, they will carry prices averaging $387 more than comparable 1977 models. The stiffest boosts are on large models, while many small cars will cost less.

The nation's No. 2 automaker said Wednesday that the increase works out to an average of 5.8 per cent, and it boosts the suggested retail price of a typical Ford, Mercury or Lincoln for 1978 over the $7,000 mark, including options.

Ford is hoping that putting the price increase burden on big cars will boost sales of its small, fuel efficient cars.

Under a new federal law, each company's fleet of cars produced in the 1978 model year must average at least 18 miles per gallon. Otherwise, the company faces a stiff fine. Ford has said it must sell a greater proportion of small cars to meet the minimum standard.

Ford's price hikes are in line with those announced last month by General Motors Corp. GM said its 1978 prices would be about 6 per cent or $405 higher on the average for comparable 1977 models. An average GM car also will be priced above $7,000 for 1978.

Ford's 1978 base prices will range from $2,995 for the subcompact Pinto Pony, which has been cut 4.3 per cent from a comparably equipped 1977 model, to $20,099 for a special edition Continental Mark V Diamond Jubilie model.

Prices for fullsize and intermediate cars are 6 per cent to 8 per cent more on average than in 1977, prices on luxury compacts are up 2 per cent to 4 per cent, and prices for subcompacts are down 1 per cent to 5 per cent.

In addition to price cuts on its small cars, Ford said prices for the 1978 subcompact Bobcat Runabout, Wagon and Villager Wagon would be $122 lower in Alaska, Hawaii, Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, Idaho, Utah and Arizona.

AAA lists gas price drop in N. California

Gasoline prices in central and northern California dropped slightly from mid-August to mid-September according to a survey by the Californai State Automobile Association.

"Gas only" and "mini" stations showed the greatest drop in prices with nationally or regionally advertised regular brands dropping almost a penny from 62.4 cents to 61.5 cents a gallon. The same products at full service outlets dropped 3/10 of a cent from 67.7 cents to 67.4 cents.

Prices for premium gas slipped one tenth of a cent at "gas only" pumps, down to an average of 67.9 cents. The price was reportedly unchanged at full service stations at 72 cents a gallon.

No lead prices dropped a half-cent at gas only pumps, to 66.2 cents and one tenth-cent at full service stations to 70.6 cents.

Compared to the same period last year premium and no lead gasoline have risen an average of slightly more than a cent while regular gas prices have dropped slightly less than half a cent.

Price differences between dealerships were reported to range as high as 10 cents per gallon while lesser known brands frequently sold for five or ten cents less per gallon than nationally advertised brands.

DMV boosts service with computer devices

Improved vehicle registration service for motorists in most of California's larger cities soon will be possible through installation of computer terminals in 16 Department of Vehicles offices that didn't have them before, bringing to 50 the number of offices so equipped.

The Livermore office of DMV is one of the locations that has, or soon will get, a computer terminal.

What this means for the motorist is that when he or she comes into the DMV office on a vehicle registration matter the rate clerk can immediately tie into the automated electronic data computer at Sacramento headquarters and obtain in a matter of seconds a printout of the motorist's vehicle registration record, accept the fee by cash or check and, if everything is in order, send the owner out of the office with the necessary plates and/or validation stickers in hand. In addition, this will speed up the issuance of any ownership or registration certificates and the record updating process that occurs when the transaction reaches Sacramento for handling.

If the printout received on the computer terminal raises any questions, they can in many cases be resolved on the spot. Otherwise delays might occur on these transactions through a need to exchange phone calls or correspondence between the vehicle owner and Sacramento Registration heasquarters, subject to more clerical handling and vagaries of the mailing system.

The same speeded-up service would be available to an individual seeking renewal of a driver's license.

A lemon?

A classified advertisement that recently appeared in the New York Times showed one dissatisfied car owner had not lost his sense of humor.

It read "Porsche 914 — $3100. Like new. Rusted engine compartment, peeling dash, leaks, etc. Save gas. Nearly four months in the shop. Still has starting problem. A perpetual investment."

TEST DRIVE THE BMW COUPE IN THE TOUGHEST PARTS OF SAN FRANCISCO.

What makes the BMW 630CSi so rare among the world's luxury coupes is that while all affect the racy lines and the trappings of the true GT car, the BMW 630CSi truly is one.

So, while the once-around-the-block test drive is perhaps ideally suited to the performance capabilities of the conventional luxury coupe, in the case of the BMW, we suggest you consider something a bit more challenging.

THE INNER-CITY SLALOM.

What more fitting test of the extraordinary handling characteristics of the BMW Coupe than the streets of the city.

As you weave nimbly through traffic, you will discover that the suspension of the BMW 630CSi, independent on all four wheels—with McPherson struts and coil springs in front, semi-trailing arms and coil springs in the rear—is quick and clean through the corners; its steering sharp and accurate.

Mercifully absent is the unsettling realization—usually discovered midway through a tight, high-speed curve—that you are not truly in control of your car.

SCALE THE PACIFIC HEIGHTS.

To the owner of a BMW, sluggish performance need never be a cause of anxiety—even while attempting a feat as courageous as passing another car on one of San Francisco's fabled hills. Under the hood of the BMW 630CSi is a 3-liter, L-Jetronic fuel-injected engine. The same basic engine that powers BMW race cars.

Its four-speed manual transmission (automatic is available) slips precisely into each gear. Its power comes up smoothly, with the turbine-like whine so characteristic of BMW.

BRAKE YOUR WAY DOWN.

Once atop a good steep hill, you will be in a perfect position for our third and final test: the brake test.

When one drives, inevitably, one is faced with a situation that calls for rapid deceleration.

And, if you're accustomed to conventional braking systems, you'll find the front-vented, four-wheel power disc-braking system of the BMW Coupe most reassuring. Particularly its ability to come to a complete, rapid stop in a straight line, time after time, with a minimum amount of brake fade and wheel pull.

IF YOU'RE GAME, WE'RE GAME.

While the BMW 630CSi features as lengthy a list of luxury items as one could reasonably require of an automobile—supple leather, full-power accessories, etc.—it provides a driving experience so unusual, so exhilarating that it will spoil you for any other car.

If you'd care to test drive the BMW Coupe for yourself, simply phone your BMW dealer and he'll arrange a thorough test drive for you at your convenience.

Leisure time at Springtown

Springtown Golf Course and its peaceful lake have a new meaning for many residents of the Livermore area since efforts have been stepped up to regroom the facility. Even the ducks seem more content and unperturbed while a young mother and her children have lunch on a park bench. (Times photo by Al Fischer).

WASHINGTON REPORT

Bill to aid foster care cases bogs down

Time's Washington Bureau

Washington — Rep. George Miller's foster care reform bill is still in trouble.

For more than two months, the legislation — Miller's "top priority" this year — has been bogged down in the Senate Finance Committee.

Although the House overwhelmingly passed it in June, the Senate Finance panel, under its powerful chairman, Russell Long, D-La., has been caught up in internal squabbles over welfare and Social Security financing.

These disputes have nothing to do with foster care — but they're tied into the same catch-all welfare bill that also includes Miller's foster care effort.

Miller, D-Martinez, said that he's still confident of some action on the bill before Congress adjourns in October. But, he acknowledged, time is running short.

Miller's legislative aide, John Lawrence, was more critical of the finance committee. "They have been deluged with information that this bill is needed and would save money ... yet they're willing to play fast and loose with kids' lives," he charged.

Miller introduced legislation to reform the foster care system in March, after a two-year study by the General Accounting Office showed that many children are denied their legal rights and shuffled from one institution to another.

Miller's bill would attempt to shift federal funding away from large foster care institutions and toward smaller facilities, typically less than 25 children. It would also set up regulations to protect children's rights, and offer special subsidies to help families adopt hard-to-get children.

In a tactical move to get the bill passed, Miller successfully convinced a House Ways and Means subcommittee in May to include the foster care provisions in a larger bill making adjustments in the welfare laws. It sailed through the House without much debate, but the Senate Finance Committee has been giving it a rough time.

Despite endorsements from the Carter Administration and personal lobbying from Vice President Mondale and Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., the Senate panel at first ripped out the foster care protections.

Then, a few weeks later, a weaker version of the protections was put back in, at the insistence of Cranston's staff.

But other squabbles on the bill — involving welfare and Social Security — have kept it from going to the Senate floor for action. At one point, Carter Administration aides were predicting that Carter might veto the bill entirely unless Long and others took out some pet provisions on welfare.

The Senate is planning to adjourn in a few weeks. The two-week filibuster over natural gas pricing has left a crowded calendar for the remaining time, and some Carter Administration officials have suggested that the bill be scrapped this year, and incorporated into the President's proposed welfare overhaul. That won't get action until next year — at the earliest.

Wholesale price rise

WASHINGTON AP — Wholesale prices turned upward by one-half of 1 per cent in September, but a government economist said Thursday there is no evidence that retail food prices will begin spiraling again.

The increase followed three months of declines or little change in the Labor Department's over-all wholesale price index.

Antitrust laws crack down seen

WASHINGTON AP — The Carter administration is planning an over-all examination of the nation's complex antitrust laws, emphasizing toughened enforcement and improved efficiency in the fight against monopolies.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell indicated the question of antitrust enforcement, and its affect on consumers, was on the administration's agenda. The two appeared Thursday at the ceremony to swear into office the new head of the Justice Department's antitrust division.

The fact that the swearing-in of Asst. Atty. Gen. John H. Shenefield was held in the White House was itself a sign of the increased focus on antitrust enforcement. Such ceremonies are usually held at the Justice Department, where they attract less attention.

Shenefield, praised by Mondale and Bell as one of the top scholars and trial lawyers in the antitrust field, was given the oath of office in the White House Roosevelt Room by Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell.

The vice president called the choice of Shenefield "a central feature in this administration's vigorous enforcement of antitrust laws," an enforcement which he said would be of particular benefit to consumers.

Bell said the administration would begin "a re-examination and a study of the antitrust laws ... to see what we can do to better handle the procedures."

A Justice Department spokesman, Mark Sheehan, said later that the department was thinking of setting up a special commission early next year to conduct a six-month study and make concrete, specific recommendations on antitrust statutes.

It would be the first such study in about 20 years, he said.

Last year Congress passed legislation to strengthen the government's antitrust enforcement powers and allow state attorney generals to sue price-fixing businesses on behalf of consumers. It gave the Justice Department authority to investigate proposed mergers in advance.

That legislation had to survive a battle in Congress that included a filibuster in the Senate.

Mondale said there is "much work to be done" in the antitrust field.

"The phenomenon of shared monopolies has increased beyond government control," he said, referring to the control of a certain field of commerce by a few companies.

He said the administration wanted to see if it coudl find a more efficient means to combat such monopolization than it has under current laws.

The vice president also said that the administration didn't want the Justice Department to back away from more complex, long-term cases for the smaller cases that may be easier to prosecute.

Introducing

FORD'S BETTER IDEAS FOR '78

featuring the new Fairmont...the Ford in your future.

The Fairmont idea.

Fairmont . . . a new car built for today, but designed for the years ahead. Fairmont combines fuel efficiency, space efficiency and cost efficiency. It's trim outside, and easy on gas, yet it's roomy inside. Stylish, but it doesn't cost a lot. With impressive ride and handling. That's Fairmont—a whole new line of better ideas.

Fuel efficient.

Fairmont sedans offer the best mileage ratings in their class.

2.3 litre 4-Speed Manual	3.3 litre Automatic
30 MPG (Hwy)*	23 MPG (Hwy)*
20 MPG (City)*	18 MPG (City)*

*EPA estimates. Your mileage may vary depending on your car's condition, optional equipment, and how and where you drive. Wagon ratings with 5.0 litre engine are lower.

Space efficient.

More than 90% of the head room, leg room, shoulder room of most large cars.

Fairmont is not a little car. It's engineered to be space efficient with 90% of the room in key areas of most large cars. And Fairmont's roomy trunk holds ten assorted pieces of luggage.

Cost efficient.

Prices start at $3,658.†

That's a lower sticker price than some little economy cars like Toyota Corona. Compare Fairmont's excellent combination of high mileage ratings, roominess and low sticker price with any other car sold in California.

†Base sticker price plus California emissions, for 2-door. Excluding title, taxes and destination charges. Two-door shown: $4,084.

More new 1978 ideas to brighten your future driving.

1978 THUNDERBIRD. The new Thunderbird is ready for takeoff. With all the styling, luxury and fine engineering that you expect in a Thunderbird. Most surprising is its down-to-earth price—even with V-8 power, automatic transmission, power steering, power front disc brakes, AM radio, standard.

NEW GRANADA ESS.

Can you tell its looks from a $20,000 Mercedes-Benz 280SE? Our new ESS is styled in the tradition of expensive sports sedans. With special luxury inside and exquisite touches throughout. And five-passenger comfort. It's the flagship of our popular Granada line.

PINTO AND MUSTANG II STICKER PRICED LOWER THAN LAST YEAR.*

1978 Pinto Pony. At $3,064‡ it's sticker priced lower than last year.

‡Base sticker price plus California emissions. Excludes title, taxes, and destination charges. Shown with whitewalls ($42).

1978 Mustang II. Now with lower sticker prices than last year.

Shown with optional T-Roof, pinstripes, bumper guards, dual sport mirrors, wheel trim rings, and front spoiler.

*Based on comparison of sticker prices for 1977 and 1978 vehicles.

NEW FORD FIESTA.

Europe's most successful ††new car... imported from Germany. ††During Ford Fiesta's first six months of sales, it outsold every new nameplate ever introduced in Europe. Engineered to give its driver dramatic performance. With front-wheel drive.

1978 FORD LTD. The roomy Ford that many families need. If you're one of the millions of people who need a standard-size car, the Ford LTD could be just the car for you. It has a deep-well, easy-to-load trunk. And stretch-out comfort for six that you expect from a Ford LTD.

Carter hit in racial quota case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lawyer representing Allan Bakke in a much-publicized "reverse discrimination" now before the Supreme Court accuses the Carter administration of double talk and "turning away from reality" for its position in the controversy.

The government "ignores the basic issue of Allan Bakke's exclusion from a state operated medical school as the result of a racial quota admission policy," Reynold Colvin of San Francisco said legal brief filed with the court Wednesday.

The justices will hear arguments next Wednesday in the Bakke case, which asks them to decide if the admissions program illegally discriminates against whites.

Many constitutional scholars predict that the court's eventual ruling could become its most important decision on race relations since 1954 when it outlawed segregation.

The fate of so-called affirmative action programs in education, government and private business across the nation would be jeopardized if Bakke wins, leading civil rights attorneys have said.

In addition to attorneys for Bakke and the University of California, the court has allowed the Justice Department to present "friend-of-the-court" arguments.

In briefs already submitted, the government urged the court to rule that some affirmative action programs that take race into account are valid. The brief, however, only glossed over the question of rigid racial quotas — which require certain numbers of minorities to be represented.

Government attorneys urged the high court to send the Bakke case back to the California courts for more fact-finding as to whether Bakke was indeed a victim of such a quota.

"The government's brief centers on the false premise that the University of California and Allan Bakke together have sought to expand this case beyond the instant record," Colvin said.

"There is but one question, involving one plaintiff and one defendant. That question is whether the University of California may lawfully impose a racial quota to govern admission ... and thereby exclude Allan Bakke from the school solely because of his race."

Bakke, a civil engineer from Sunnyvale, Calif., was twice rejected for admission to the university's medical school at Davis. He contended — and the school could not prove he was wrong — that he would have been accepted if 16 of the 100 openings in each year's entering class had not been reserved for a special admissions program.

Bakke claimed that some of the minority students admitted under the special program were not as academically qualified as he.

"The suggestion that the setting aside of these 16 places is a 'benign' goal simply deprives language of its plain meaning," Colvin said in assailing the government's lengthy brief.

He accused the government of "sidestepping the controversy."

Sex bias cases on pregnancies await ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is deliberating two sex discrimination cases that could affect millions of working women, with feminists hoping congressional action will make any unfavorable court decision a moot point.

Two cases argued before the high court's nine justices Wednesday ask them to decide whether pregnant workers may be denied sick pay, can be forced to begin maternity leave when the boss says so and be forced to lose their seniority benefits while off the job having a baby.

Lower courts have ruled in favor of the two women involved, finding that their employers violated the sex discrimination ban in the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Last December, however, the Supreme Court ruled in a case involving the General Electric Co. that pregnancy discrimination is not necessarily illegal.

The court voted 6-3 that GE and other employers do not have to offer pregnancy disability benefits just because the companies provide benefits for other disabilities through health insurance programs.

Angered by that decision, women's groups immediately began lobbying in Congress to have the Civil Rights Act amended to nullify the court's interpretation.

Last month, the Senate overwhelmingly approved an amendment that would require employers to include pregnancy benefits in workers' disability plans. The legislation is now before the House.

One of the cases heard by the court Wednesday began in 1972 when Nora Satty, employed by the Nashville (Tenn.) Gas Co. for more than three years, became pregnant.

Mrs. Satty, who was refused sick pay, learned at the end of her maternity leave that her job had been abolished.

She had also lost all seniority privileges for bidding on another position in the 350-employe firm.

In the second case, Sonja Lynn Berg was a teacher in Richmond, Calif., when she became pregnant. She challenged the school board's policy of not including pregnancy under sick leave benefits and its practice of telling pregnant teachers when they no longer could work.

The high court's decisions in both cases probably won't be announced before the end of the year, and might not come until the end of the court term in June.

Moped sales, accidents rise

Mopeds, the little motorized bicycles from Europe are becoming increasingly popular in U.S. urban and suburban areas as the costs of gas and automobiles rise. One result has been a new safety problem on the streets.

In the first seven months of 1977 the California Highway Patrol reported 300 injury accidents involving mopeds in California alone.

Invasion from Mexico

Tomato imports hurt California farmers

By DAN TEDRICK
Associated Press Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) A largescale invasion of Mexican tomatoes, at discount prices and with legal breaks from the Mexican government, reportedly is forcing some U. S. growers out of business.

One of those grower, Takeo Azuma, farmed 75 acres of summer and fall tomatoes at Chula Vista south of here. But he quit.

"I'm not going to fight it," Azuma told friends before retiring this year.

The "it" is increasingly heavy Mexican imports at prices which undercut prices for American tomatoes. The low tab is at least partly the result of lower labor costs south of the border and organizing by farm unions north of it.

The competition poses a serious threat to San Diego County, where tomatoes have in recent years become the No. 1 fresh-market crop, valued at more than $55 million.

"The competition from Mexican imports has driven prices down to a current range below the grower's cost of production," said Bernard Hall, a county agriculture advisor.

"With Mexico, it's a one-way deal and we don't like it," Hall said, pointing out that U. S. growers face stringent import regulations imposed by Mexico, with relaxed export laws to encourage Mexican growers.

And, says Hall, "we can't compete with the price of labor there — $4 or $5 a day when we pay $3 or $4 an hour."

Bob Dameron, sales manager of the South Bay Cooperative, calls the problem "of grave concern to all of us."

For example, a buyer for a Florida-based supermarket chain which purchases 20 to 30 truckloads of tomatoes a week found prices of $5.50 for a twolayer flat of the bigger San Diego County-grown tomatoes during the last week of September.

So he bought Baja California tomatoes delivered at the border community of San Ysidro. The price — $5 for the same amount.

In a speech to the Council of California Growers this summer, Hall said the answer appears to be better research because, "if our yields don't keep improving, our growers can't stay in business." He said researchers have developed varieties of tomatoes that show better resistance to destructive insects and viruses.

Year-round schools can increase costs

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Year-round schools can be more expensive than traditional education programs unless they're used to avoid building new school facilities, the auditor general said Wednesday.

In a study of 11 school districts, the auditor general said year-round programs "slightly" boost both state and local education costs unless used as a substitute for greater capital investments.

Ten of the districts did not use the program mainly for that purpose, the report said, although 120 of the state's 200 year-round schools cited increasing classroom capacity as the main reason for starting the program.

In a year-round program, the traditional school year is spread over 12 months instead of the nine months traditionally used by school districts.

Students still attend class about the same number of days a year, but their vacations are staggered and usually shorter than the traditional threemonth summer break.

That allows school officials to accomodate up to one-third more students in existing facilities, since a portion of a school's student body is always on vacation, the report said.

Supporters say the program provides other benefits.

Major low tar brands tested!
